FEDERAL GRAND JURY WILL HEAR PERJURY MATTER

Fresnans Involved In Big Prohibition Bribe Trial

WILMOT ALLEGED TO HAVE ENTANGLED LOCAL PEOPLE

Receipt Used In Court Is Basis Of The Whole Matter

SAN FRANCISCO BEE BUREAU, Dec. 5.—To consider the situation created by perjury admissions involving in some degree seven Fresno people in the bribe case trial of Roy Wilmot, former federal prohibition agent, the federal grand jury is scheduled to meet this afternoon.

Fresnans Involved

The Fresnans involved are Eliot E. Bradley, automobile dealer, Casey Thompson, his sales manager, Miss Grace Breckenridge, a bookkeeper employed by Bradley, Stanley Scott, washing machine salesman, and his wife and Fred Wolferd, advertising man, and Mrs. Wolferd.

Government authorities are inclined to believe that the first three had no idea that a certain receipt for $10 for the use of an automobile given by Mrs. Stanley Scott to Wilmot July 21st last was to be used at the Wilmot trial.

Receipt Needed

Wolfred, explaining how he and Mrs. Scott were drawn into the case, testified yesterday that Wilmot had told him a receipt was needed to attach to an expense account to be submitted to prohibition officials, showing Wilmot had spent $10 as his share for the payment of the car rented for a trip from San Francisco to Sacramento last July.

The government alleges that Wilmot at that time was using an automobile belonging to J. J. Kolburn, San Francisco druggist, whom Wilmot had formerly arrested on a liquor charge.

In an effort to clear himself of suspicion of dealing with Kolburn, Wilmot is alleged to have entangled the Fresno people in the plot to establish an alibi by proving that he had merely rented the car from Mrs. Scott. Then to make the alleged plot more sound, a second receipt indicating that Mrs. Scott had a machine to rent was secured. Later the perjured testimony was necessary to uphold both receipts, according to statements made to the United States attorney.

Telling her version of the automobile trip and the $10 receipt, Mrs. Scott before United States Attorney John T. Williams stated that she met Wilmot in San Francisco July 29, while she was in company with Mrs. Wolferd and her children. She said Wilmot invited them to Sacramento with him and they accepted.

Receipt Issued

The trip was made in a Ford sedan, she testified. Several days later her husband told her Wilmot wanted a $10 receipt for the use of the machine, and she wrote the following:

"July 31, 1922. Received of Roy Wilmot $10 for hire of automobile from San Francisco to Sacramento. Mrs. Stanley L. Scott."

No actual cash was included in the transactions, she testified.

Later, she said, Wilmot told her

REBELS PURSUED AFTER AMBUSHING FREE STATE MEN

Insurgents Resume Guerilla Warfare, But Are Repulsed With Heavy Casualties

(By the United Press)

DUBLIN, Dec. 5.—Irish insurgents resumed the guerilla warfare today on the eve of the actual establishment of the Free State.

Sixty rebels, who ambushed Free Staters west of Cork, were driven off with machine gun fire. They were closely pursued and heavy casualties inflicted as they fled into heavy woods.

Following passage of the bills establishing the Free State by the British House of Lords, reports of an irregular coup planned here tonight flew about Dublin. The insurgent Republicans these reports said, are prepared for a last desperate effort to prevent the new government from functioning.

RACING HALTED AT TIA JUANA

Minister Calles Of Mexico Closes Track Because Of Fights

SAN DIEGO (Cal.), Dec. 5.—Racing has been stopped at Tia Juana by order of Minister of the Interior Calles of Mexico.

Calles has been informed that there is street fighting going on in the border town, his message to President James Coffroth of the Lower California Jockey Club said.

Calles stated that he feared injuries to American citizens and possible international complications, and for that reason ordered racing suspended pending investigation of military affairs. There has been no street fighting at Tia Juana, however, and the jockey club officials hope to reopen the track to-morrow.

CLEMENCEAU PUTS CAUSE OF FRANCE BEFORE HARDING

Tiger Pleads For America To 'Come Back To Aid Of Europe'

AGED FRENCHMAN TO VISIT WILSON TO-MORROW

President Tells Visitor U. S. Desires To Help In Every Possible Manner

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Georges Clemenceau to-day pinned the cause of France directly before President Harding.

In a forty-five minute conference at the White House the Tiger sought to convince the executive that America should again wield her mighty influence in old world affairs to save the continent from disaster.

Pleads For Aid

Pleading for the United States to "come back" to Europe, the veteran statesman summed up for Mr. Harding the outstanding thoughts of the four main addresses which he has made in carrying his cause direct to the American people.

Mr. Harding met the Tiger in the oval room of the White House, which serves as the executive's office.

Pinages Into Story

After an exchange of friendly greetings, Clemenceau is said to have plunged directly into the story nearest his heart—the plight of his beloved France.

The president is understood to have informed him in general terms of America's desire to be helpful in bringing peace and economic stability throughout the world.

Whether the two great world figures went into such details as the tripartite alliance of Great Britain, the United States and France for the defense of the latter country, was not revealed.

Tiger Is Happy

Clemenceau came from the conference with a smile, which seemed to say that he was well pleased with his talk with Mr. Harding.

Just after the White House conference it was announced that the Tiger's plans for his call on his collaborator at Versailles—Woodrow Wilson, had been postponed until 5 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

This meeting is understood to

FIVE MEN HELD TO ANSWER FOR MINKLER MURDER

Formal Action Taken Though Body Of Victim Has Not Been Found

CERVANTES KILLED IN BRAWL, SAYS PRISONER

Accused Appear In Court With Heads Cut, Scarred And Bandaged

Despite the fact that no body has been found, five men were to-day held to answer by Justice of the Peace George B. Graham without bail, charged with the murder of J. Cervantes at Minkler a week ago.

The five men are I. Robledo, P. Robledo, G. Robledo, F. Ramos and S. Veras.

Plead Not Guilty

Wearing heavy bandages and showing cuts and scars on their heads the men entered pleas of not guilty when the charge was read to them to-day.

Authorities have searched for a trace of the body for the past week, but they have been unsuccessful.

F. Cervantes, brother of the missing man, told Sheriff W. F. Jones and Deputy W. F. Winning, who made the arrests, that he had seen the body. Blood clots have been found by the sheriff.

Dance, Brawl, Death

According to a story told in justice court to-day by Isaac Robledo, one of the prisoners, he attended at dance near Minkler that ended in a drunken quarrel. It was during this brawl, he said, that Cervantes was killed.

Tchitcherin Held To Be Author Of Present Situation

(By the United Press)

LAUSANNE, Dec. 5.—Out-maneuvering of Europe's statesmen by the joint diplomacy of the Turks and Russians at Lausanne has nearly checkmated the allies.

The Near Eastern Conference stands adjourned until Wednesday while Marquis Curzon, M. Barrere and Marquis Di Garroni cabled their governments for further instructions. The allies were unable to draw the Turks into a declaration of policy which they could oppose and the only course now open to them is again to resort to ultimata.

The allied delegations do not conceal their anger with Tchitcherin who is considered the probable author of the present situation.

Woman In Spectacular Flight Through Sawed Bars Of Cell Window

Carefully Laid Plans Apparent As Convicted Hammer Slayer Completely Disappears During Early Morning Hours; Police Throw Out Dragnet

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—Clara Phillips, who hammered the path to a long prison sentence when she beat the life from Alberta Meadows, to-day hacked her way to freedom with a saw.

Aided from the outside, in the belief of jailers, she cut the bars of her cell on the third floor of the county jail, and squeezing through a hole scarcely large enough for her body to pass, escaped, barefoot, across the roof of the jail.

Confederates assisted her—no doubt smiling in her inveterate chorus girl fashion—from the roof to an automobile that is now being sought by posses between here and the border and in every adjoining county.

Her exit, characteristic in its fierce daring, was unobserved, and occurred between 2 A. M. when she was last seen and shortly after seven to-day when Mrs. L. D. Fisher, jail matron, found the vacant cell.

Escape Made Early

It was said at first that Mrs. Phillips might have escaped during the excitement of Madalynne Obenchain's departure from the jail last night, but sheriff's officers declared that the escape was made early this morning by the window.

The escape was discovered shortly after 7 A. M., it was stated.

Mrs. Phillips was in her cell at 2 A. M. when Mrs. L. D. Fisher, night matron, made her usual tour of inspection, the matron insisted.

The window of the cell had been decorated by a pretty curtain, which served to conceal the sawed bars, it was learned. The hole in the bars was scarcely large enough to permit her to squeeze through, and the jagged edges of the sawed bars caught threads from her clothing. Prints of a woman's bare foot were found on the building under the window leading to the point where the ladder had been placed.

Clara had left most of her effects behind, taking with her a black dress and a faded blue frock which she used when working. Besides many articles of apparel she left some small change, a picture of Armour Phillips, her husband, and her suit case.

A deputy sheriff reported that he had noticed an automobile with curtains down near the jail about 1 A. M. to-day but he could not give a complete description of it.

Search was immediately instituted for Armour Phillips and Harry Karst who had both recently visited Mrs. Phillips at the jail.

Karst at the trial was named as the man with whom Phillips had accused his wife of staying over night at Camp Baldy in the quarrel which Mrs. Phillips said led to her jealousy of Mrs. Meadows.

A corps of officers was set at work rounding up all persons associated with the Phillips case upon whom there might fall the slightest suspicion of abetting the escape.

On Third Floor

Mrs. Phillips occupied the middle of three cells on the third floor in which women accused of murder are imprisoned. The cell on one side had been vacated last evening by Madalynne Obenchain, whose case had been dismissed. The cell on the other side was occupied by Alma Smith, a negro girl accused of killing her sweetheart, who declared she heard nothing and knew nothing of the escape.

Jailer Bailey said he was convinced the escape was engineered from the outside. The hole in the bars through which Mrs. Phillips squeezed herself was 13 by 10¾ inches. Tracks of her bare feet were found on the roof of the jail and on the roof of an adjoining building, indicating that she must have slid down the drain pipe of the jail for the full length of one floor.

Immigration and customs officials at the border were instructed to watch for the fugitive and sheriffs of surrounding counties notified to be on the alert. It was the belief of officers that Mrs. Phillips had taken flight by automobile.

Officers Amazed

Jail officers and the sheriff's office were amazed at the attempt.

Easy To Escape From Jail Says Mrs. Obenchain

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—The exploit of Clara Phillips in breaking from the county jail to-day is not without precedent except as it regards the woman's quarters.

Herbert Wilson, known as the millionaire preacher bandit, recently led a most sensational escape when with Guido Spingola and Adam Blazyk he fought his way to freedom through guards, only to be captured in the city the following morning.

Several other prisoners have escaped by sawing bars, and Madalynne Obenchain who told the United Press she saw one escape, recently declared, "why I could have got out myself."

Matron Discovers Fair Prisoner Not In Cell

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—Matron L. D. Fisher of the county jail discovered the escape of Clara Phillips shortly after 7 A. M. to-day.

"I called the girls on the fourth floor at 6:30 A. M. and went down and called the girls in the dormitories below," she said. "Breakfast was served at 6:45, but when Clara did not come down I thought nothing of it, because she usually had breakfast in her cell.

"While the girls were doing the dishes I went up and called to the occupants of the two cells, saying, 'Alma Smith will clean the upstairs part to-day and Clara Phillips will do the hall.'

"Then I came downstairs again and the girls began their morning work. Clara didn't come down to do the hall so I went up to see if she was ill. I looked into her cell and saw she was up and out, but thought she must be somewhere around the women's quarters.

"Alma and I stepped into Clara's cell and drew the curtains. We saw the hole where the bars had been sawed.

"'Oh Lordy,' Alma said, 'she's gone right out through that hole.'"

THE romance of the rise of the fig from an imported luxury to a staple article of diet will be the theme upon which nearly half a dozen speakers will enlarge tomorrow at a meeting of the Fresno Advertising Club at the Hotel Fresno, with Ed. Boland, publicity director of the California Peach and Fig Growers, presiding.

Those who will present various aspects of the fig industry are Al Sunderland, F. S. Moorhead, general sales-manager; Ira J. Condit, agricultural expert, and E. A. Berg.

They are thoroughly acquainted with the subject, and in a large measure responsible for the growth of the industry in California. The speakers will show that the industry has been developed to a greater extent in the past two years than during any century of the past 6,000 years. They will also point out its possibilities. Berg will call attention to the fact that Fresno is the only center of the national advertising of a fig product.

Home Loving Instincts Developed At Exposition

THERE are few conscientious housewives, or young girls with the alluring thought of a hope chest and dreams of a future home of their own who do not secretly revel in any innovation that has to do with the home. Every woman who is truly feminine really loves her home, and wishes to make it the most attractive place imaginable.

Mrs. Florence Austin Chase of Chicago one of the ablest experts in home economics and who is presiding over the Fresno Better Homes Exposition at the Fresno Auditorium every afternoon this week except Saturday will give many hints on home-making and home decoration; including advice on the choosing of curtains, draperies, pictures; the placing of furniture; the way to hang pictures, and how to make the house delightfully attractive.

Many Present

Yesterday afternoon groups of Fresno women listened with enthusiasm to Mrs. Chase's advice, and watched the preparation of several delicious salads and of the most delectable cheese biscuits, with undisguised interest.

There was a substantial fish salad daintily made in a simple, economical and delicious and good looking enough to serve at the most formal occasion; the fruit salad was an epitome of delicate goodness; the butterfly salad would delight the most ambitious of brides in search of something novel and different; the salad served with a Thousand Island dressing, left nothing unsaid in the language of salads, it was perfect.

Salads Perfect

In addition to the making of the salads all the recipes were given and several salad dressings were made before the audience.

One of the interesting features of Mrs. Chase's talk, was the necessity of system in the home. She proved the efficacy of this statement in the easy, methodical, way in which she set about her tasks.

"Every ingredient used in the preparation of food should be placed on the right hand side of the table before one starts to mix or prepare anything. After the ingredients have been used in their proper sequence, they should always be moved to the left hand side of the table, thus insuring perfect results.

Accuracy Important

"Accuracy in measuring is one of the most important things in cooking. Every teaspoon of material should be level and not heaping. If this method is carefully followed the results will always be uniform."

This afternoon Mrs. Chase will

"I do not want to talk about it any more. I know you will understand how I feel."

Certain Of Guilt

"We are certain Mrs. Baratti killed her husband," declared police detectives assigned to the case. "When the time comes we will prove it."

"I will show the court she is entirely innocent," was the counter comment of J. B. Zimdars, her attorney.

FRESNO ZONING BEING OPPOSED

Industrial Concerns Will Present Nine Points At Meeting

Nine reasons for opposition to the plan of the Fresno Planning Commission for placing industrial sites on Diana Street in a residential property classification in the city zoning map are given by Routt Lumber Company, Bingham-Wenks Planing Mill and Federal Foundry Company in a communication to The Fresno Bee. Strenuous objection to asserted restriction of industrial activity along the Santa Fé railroad right of way will be made at the commission meeting to-night by the owners of the industries in the district.

Nine Points Given

The nine points on which the protest will be based are given by the three concerns as follows:

"First: The railroad upon entering this city is upon a comparatively high grade, making it very unsightly for residential purposes.

"Second: Residential property is not in any other city that we know of, placed tributary to a main line railroad with it's evils and dangers to children and others.

"Third: On account of the number of industrial plants that bought and occupied sites along this railroad right of way far prior to the time this became a part of the city.

"Fourth: A study of the map will show that the streets were planned with the intent and purpose as an industrial district, allowing for switching and shipping facilities.

Money Invested

"Fifth: Owing to the great amount of money invested and at the price much of this was purchased. Every dwelling located close to this district, is being held and offered for sale, not for residences but for industrial purposes.

"Sixth: A census of available industrial sites tributary to the railroads will readily indicate that Fresno is badly in need of sites for industrial purposes.

Other Districts

"Seventh: There are many and ample districts in the city and outlying districts far more suitable for residential purposes and not hampered by railroads in any respect.

"Eight: That by centralizing the industries, lumber yards, planing mills, etc., much harm would result in case of fire, temporary power shut off, reparing of water and gas mains and numerous other ailments that are the rule of any congestion.

"Ninth: We believe that for the reasons given above it would be entirely discriminating against both the railroads and the industries and the people who have invested their money in what they believed to be industrial proprty, along the railroad right of way.

"We believe that before a group of men and women are qualified to pass judgment upon a question of this kind, they should use every available bit of information that is within their reach."

Five Independence Men On Trial In Federal Court For Eviction

The eviction case against five residents of Independence, charged with forcibly driving Frank W. Chatelain from his homestead, was scheduled to start at 3 P. M. to-day in federa c'ourt, according to special assistant United States District Attorney H. N. Ellis.

Fertig, Charles A. Newhaus, M. T. Porter, W. T. Snodgrass and several of the defendents' wives, according to M. G. Callaher, attorney for the defendents.

The defendants allege that Chatelain slandered the women of that region without reason and was an unfit person to remain in the community. On April 22, 1922, the information states, the men went to his homestead and drove him from the place.

He filed charges at once against them which were brought before the federal grand jury and an indictment returned.

BIBLE CASE UP TO HIGH COURT

Petition Filed Asking For Hearing In Matter From Selma

SAN FRANCISCO BEE BUREAU, Dec. 5.—A petition for a hearing before the supreme court en banc was filed here to-day by the defendants in the case of Elbert L. Evans vs. Selma Union High School District et al, an action brought to keep the Bible out of the schools. The suit protested against the purchase of the Bible for the library of the Selma School because it is a sectarian book and the appellate court ruled for the plaintiff.

Three Grounds

Hearing is asked on three grounds: That the decision of the district court of appeal is wrong in principle; that the decision ignores the weight of authority and that the decision is a serious handicap to the school system of the state.

On the first ground the petitioner contends the Bible is the book of all Christians and the King James version is but a translation. It is a religious book but not sectarian on the theory there is a difference between religion and a sect.

As to weight of authority the petitioner accuses the appellate court of manufacturing its definition of sect "out of the clear sky," and not basing the decision on any cited cases.

May Bar Others

Referring to the effect it will have on the school system the petition alleges that if the decision holds good it will mean the barring from the schools of Pilgrim's Progress, portions of encyclopedias dealing with religion, all books relating to Christianity, all histories which deal with church controversies, even books which deal with the origin of the species. The King James version is held to be a necessary part of every library from a historic and literary standpoint.

To back up these arguments a letter from Professor C. E. Rugh, professor of education of the University of California, and an editorial from the Outlook are quoted, both maintaining the Bible has a place in the schools.

Glass Cutting Thieves Busy—"Glass-cutting" burglars, who have looted six San Francisco jewelry stores in the past month, yesterday cut out a plate-glass window in the California Optical Company's store at 181 Post Street, San Francisco, and escaped with field glasses, jewelry and binoculars worth $900. Examination by detectives showed that the thieves had carefully marked out part of the window with a glass cutter and used a hammer to break it away.

Boy Runs Away From His Sponsor

The first case of a boy failing his sponsor went on record here to-day when it was reported that Raymond Terry, 14, had run away after being released on probation and having been given to a member of the Kiwanis Club for sponsoring.

According to Mrs. Cora B. Van Meter, this is the first boy to mistreat those trying to aid him and she states that there is no occasion for members of the club to feel discouraged. She says there are still plenty of boys who want help and who are willing to act with gratitude.

Raymond had become a ward of the juvenile court following his conviction on a misdemeanor charge.

The Deductions of Harvey Hunt

By PHILIP FRANCIS NOWLAN

(Copyright, 1922, by Public Ledger Co.)

XXV

It was the thick spectacles that first indicated to Harvey Hunt, in the case of "Foiled Camouflage," that old Mr. Linkman had not died a natural death.

Harvey Hunt and his friend Evan had found the old man's body seated in an easy chair, a newspaper in hands, which apparently he had been reading.

The spectacles Harvey Hunt found on the telephone table at the other side of the room. They were very thick spectacles, and Evan declared that he had never seen the old man before without them.

No man who wore such thick spectacles, Harvey Hunt knew, could read a newspaper without them. Hence he came to the conclusion that Linkman had been killed, and that his murderers in the attempt to make his death look natural, had staged the scene, placing the body in the chair. It was the finishing realistic touch of placing the newspaper in the hands of a man who could not read without his glasses that proved their undoing.

It happened at the Bellevue-Strathmore, Dewees Schuyler had taken a suite of rooms, and with a profound sense of his powerful social and financial position, had chosen to object to the mirror which gave the floor clerk a view down the corridor on which his rooms were situated. He felt that the routine observation of even the doors of his suite constituted an unbearable intrusion upon his privacy.

Against his better judgment the manager of the hotel had removed the offending mirror. Dewees Schuyler was a guest no hotel could afford to cross.

But Schuyler paid for his whim. It cost him $100,000.

The very first night of their sojourn in the hotel Schuyler and his wife went up to their rooms about midnight. Upon Mrs. Schuyler's dressing table lay the fragments of an exquisite little Japanese inlaid jewel box. It had been smashed simply and effectively with the heavy silver hand mirror that lay beside it. A necklace worth $100,000, and a $60,000 brooch, all that it had contained, were gone. Of course the floor clerk around the corner of the corridor saw no one enter or leave the Schuyler rooms.

While the house detective surveyed the general situation, the manager interviewed the indignant Schuylers.

The detective narrowed the search down to one guests, registered as J. Brown, who had been in his room across the hall from the Schuylers all evening. The other guests on the corridor had gone out before the Schuylers and had not yet returned.

"There's a catch somewhere, Jim," said the manager. "It's clear he did it, but someth ng tells me when we charge him with it and search him and his room we're not going to find anything."

"That's the way I dope it too," said the house detective. "He lays himself too darn wide-open to suspicion. He's not counting on avoiding suspicion. He's counting on avoiding proof. Say, who do you think's registered in the house to-night? The very man we want—Harvey Hunt. He's one of the slickest criminal investigators in the country. What to you say we call him up? Yes, I know I'm pahl to do this thing myself, but we're dealing with a master mind' here, and I'm not bragging I'm as good a 'dick' as Harvey Hunt."

So they arranged it that way. Harvey Hunt was called from his room and came up to impersonate the house detective. In the meantime there had been no stir from Brown's room.

At first Brown put up a splendid imitation of an honest man aroused from sleep and falsely accused, but Harvey Hunt cut him short.

"Come out of it, Reagan," he snapped. "I know you. Hand over those 'sparklers.'"

"Well," said Reagan, smiling derisively as he dropped his pose, "you can't fall me just because you know me. As for your reference to 'sparklers,' I don't understand you. You can search me if you like. I have no doubt the manager there will even let you search the room."

A complete search failed to reveal the missing gems, but they all had expected this anyway. But what did interest Harvey Hunt was a spool of black thread and a tape measure, together with a department store sales check, showing that they had been purchased that day.

Then the criminal investigator did an unexpected thing. He measured the thread on the spool with the tape measure.

"If you'll let me talk to your room clerk now," he said to the manager, "I'll tell you which one of your guests walked out of the hotel with the loot. But I doubt if you'll ever catch him or find it—or I don't know our friend Whitey Reagan here as well as I think I do. We're a bit late on this case."

And Whitey Reagan, alias J. Brown, grinned.

Why did Harvey Hunt measure the thread on the spool, and how could he tell who had taken the jewels out of the hotel?

The answer will appear to-morrow.

Gadski Wins Adulation Of Auditors At Concert

By ISABEL MORSE

ONE OF THE NOTABLE concerts of Fresno's musical history took place at the high school auditorium last night, Mme. Johanna Gadski, artist of the first rank, magnificent, stately, appointed to power, sang to a small group of the musical elect, but despite the size of the audience the program was a triumph.

Gadski's message was brave with a sense of power, a great hearted longing to take the listener up with her to the unsurpassable heights of music and surround them with the love and beauty which dwells there. All who were there last night owe her a great debt, one of vast importance to soul growth. Here was a world famous artist, accustomed to the adulation of thousands singing to a mere handful, although they were of the elect, that was proven by their presence, singing marvelously, exactly as if the entire Metropolitan Opera Company were back of her and the historical horseshoe of diamonds in front of her. It is unforgettable.

First Aria Not Good

The first aria from Tannhauser was not good. It was an effort, whether the effort came from the listeners or from the artist, I shall never know. The echoes were bad, the immense voice was hollow, one's first thought was, alas here is a noble ruin. But patience had its reward. Schubert's immortal Serenade came forth with a new loveliness and by the time the Erlking was finished, every heart in the audience quickened in expectancy.

The encore to the first group was one of the most delicious bits of satire I have been privileged to witness. It was Mrs. Beaches' song of optimism, God's in His Heaven, All's Right With the World, sung with a lilt and a toss of the head that was inimitable.

The next group was in English, two American numbers of Kramer and a Portland composer, Mrs. A. S. Kerry. They were charming with a light grace. On the Steppe by Gretchnaninow brought out the contralto depths of her voice and the knowledge of suffering, which is the soul of Russian music.

Shows Great Understanding

Gadski's Brahms as portrayed in the last two songs, At the Forge and Love Is Forever, was full of great understanding, and when she added the immortal Brahms Lullaby which is the very essence of motherhood in melody, she had all listeners in the hollow of her hand.

One of the precious numbers on the second half of the program was Richard Wagner's Steh' Still, with its poem by the woman he loved, Matilda Wessendonck. It is one of the five songs closely associated, with which Wagner enriched the world.

Percy Kahn's Ave Maria, with its remembrances of Caruso, was added to this group, and it served to reveal high tones of beauty in the singer's voice.

The concert closed with the Call of the Valkyrie. A passionate, magnificent cry with an insatiable reaching out, a ringing powerful encouragement to self-realization which seized every fortunate person within hearing and made him stand up in the effort to stretch and grow and comprehend.

A word or two is all an accompanist ever gets, and it is a pity, for accompanists perfect a great performance and the work of Margot Hughes was exceptional. She is one with the artist. Her work is the production of a clear thinking brain, always ahead, always ready, anticipating the singer and evincing her preparation with perfect understanding. Mme. Gadski made Frank La Forge and several others who have achieved in the accompanist's world and now this California girl has been given the mantle and she wears it well.

MUSIC

BY ISABEL MORSE

The Fresno Male Chorus sings at the White Theater to-night. Fifty members of this ten-year old singing fraternity will give a program which promises to be excellent.

A. S. Perkins

The numbers chosen are spirited and cover a wide range of musical expression and their leader, A. G. Wahlberg, has rehearsed them strenuously to a high state of perfection.

Male chorus singing originates the best in music and is the very foundation of understanding of the life of the community which it is not easy to estimate.

Raymond Harmon of Los Angeles will sing the solo part of the principal song and give an interesting program of his own, accompanied by Mrs. Romayne Hunkins, whose work with the chorus for the last five years has done much to further their advancement.

A. S. Perkins, president of the organization, has been untiring in his efforts to maintain the high aims of the chorus and with the help of M. D. Hawkins, Dr. Robert Cockrill and others, the male chorus series of three concerts have been planned for this season.

To-night's program follows:

Viking Song ..S. Coleridge Taylor
The Miracle of Love..Frank McKee
Battle Hymn from Rienzi..Wagner
Bedouin Song.....James H. Rogers

Solo by Felix Locher.

The Long Day Closes .....
.....Sir Arthur Sullivan
Bring Her Again .....
.....Frank Seymour Hastings
Chorus of Sprit and Hours .....
.....Dudley Buck

Solo by Raymond Harmon.

KIWANIANS INVITE WIVES

Wives and women friends of the members of the Kiwanis Club will be invited to the next luncheon of the organization, which will be held Thursday at the Hughes Hotel. An interesting program has been arranged which will include a dramatic reading by Leo Cooper, a member of the high school faculty, and a trumpet solo by P. Santa Emma, also a faculty member.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The "Norfolk" hint is more than strong in this smart new winter suit of "jabac" cloth trimmed with nutria.

For the woman who can wear light browns there is nothing more becoming than this subtle combination. The nutria, of course, if of the warm golden variety and as nearly matches the tissue as possible.

The true "Norfolk" has only one or two plaits each side of the jacket, but in this case they are placed all round, and are even used on the sleeves.

Instead of one belt there are two, and these are threaded in and out to form a lattice effect.

Extremely interesting yet as simple as possible, is the original way of handling the low waistline. The skirt is plaited at the waistline only—the plaits having the narrowest turnings possible. Again the lattice effect with two belts is introduced.

The top part of the model—for it is a one-piece frock—is of dull gold vaguely figured metal tissue.

Frocks topped with metal tissues are extremely a la mode. The glimmering material commences, one hardly knows where, at times, so cleverly is it handled. In many instances it is merged into the accompanying cloth anywhere between a low waistline and the bustline by means of embroidery. Seldom is there a distinct line between it and the rest of the frock.

One of the couturiers who most favors this vogue in Jean Patou.

What's What

By HELEN DECIE

Nothing is more amusing to "real people" than the controversy as to whether or not a man or woman is disqualified for the title "gentleman" or "lady" because he or she is willing to carry a package occasionally. The author of one new and pompous book of etiquette seems to shudder as she declares, "Bundles do not suggest a lady, and as for gentlemen and bundles!—they do not go together at all."

The great American editor and philanthropist, George W. Childs, during a temporary shortage of regular messengers asked a clerk to deliver an important parcel on the way to luncheon. The clerk hesitated and offered to search for a boy. "No gentleman could carry a parcel," he explained. "Then, I suppose I am no gentleman," replied Mr. Childs severely. And he delivered the package himself.

While enormous bundles are awkward and embarassing no one need be afraid to lose caste by carrying easily portable packages, especially during the holiday season, when all the shop helpers are over-burdended with the larger deliveries.

Gate tables were made all during the Stuart period and proved so useful and adaptable to a variety of purposes that they continued to be made long after nearly all the other Stuart styles had been discarded. They were called "gate" tables on account of the arrangement of the legs. Pairs of legs, connected by stretchers, swung out from the sides like gates to support the leaves. These gates were pivoted in the framing at the top and in the long stretchers at the bottom, as may be seen by carefully examining the early American table shown in the cut.

The legs and strechers of gate tables were turned, the pattern of the turning depending on the preference of the maker. The tops were usually either rectangular or oval and the feet were generally either ball-shaped or also of the so-called "Spanish foot" pattern. The materials ordinarily used were oak, walnut, cherry, maple of whatever other woods were locally convenient.

Gate tables served not only for dining but for many purposes besides. Nowadays they are being reproduced in large numbers because they are so handy and adaptable, and well designed likewise. One great advantage is that their leaves can be dropped when not in use, so that they take up little space.

SHIPPERS SAID TO BE AFRAID TO FAVOR UNMERGER

Witness At Hearings Declares Railroad Has Terrorized Producers Of State

WASHINGTON BEE BUREAU, Dec. 5.—Charges that the Southern Pacific had terrorized shippers and producers throughout California into passing resolutions in opposition to the unmerger of the Southern Pacific and Central Pacific were made before the interstate commerce commission to-day by Van Bernard of Butte City, chairman of the executive committee of the California Producers and Shippers' Association.

"Our campaign," Van Bernard said, "showed that many men were in fear of what would happen to them from a transportation standpoint if they joined with us.

"Our products rot in our fields because we cannot get cars to move them to market," said Mr. Bernard. "Our market is restricted to the quantity of products that we are able to ship not what we grow in our fields. We want better transportation and more railroad competition because it means market expansion for us."

Fresno Man Testifies

Charles Teague of Fresno, owner of several thousand acres of San Joaquin Valley land, was among the first of the principal witnesses protesting against the continued merger of the Southern Pacific and the Central Pacific through a "temporary lease" in the hearing before the interstate commerce commission.

Teague, who is a member of the Fresno committee of the California Producers and Shippers' Association, an organization which is combatting efforts to set aside the order of the United States Supreme Court, told the commissioners, in his testimony, that "land development is retarded, values depreciated and taxes are increasing" because of lack of railroad competition in the San Joaquin Valley.

Car Lack Causes Loss

"We have about 90,000 acres of Sultana grapes in the San Joaquin Valley, each acre yielding about seventeen tons to the season," Teague said. "Our losses from an inadequate car supply this year in these grapes alone has been enormous.

"The present railroad management in Central California has failed to keep pace with the demands of the agricultural communities and as a result competition should be created by the separation of the Central Pacific and Southern Pacific.

"The result of all this is that land development is retarded, values depreciated and taxes are increasing, despite the fact that tens of millions are being expended on irrigation districts and highways. To meet the increasing taxes we must have an adequate transportation system to get our crops to the market."

Victor Larsen of Lodi, another witness, quoted to the commission the figures of the railroads themselves, showing that in such sections as Los Angeles, where there was competition, plenty of cars were available for shippers, but in those sections where competition was absent the number of cars supplied to shippers fell below the mark by several hundreds.

Taxpaying Season Ended Here Last Night

The season for taxpayers is over. The last opportunity expired at 6 P. M. yesterday. Those who ventura into the office of Tax Collector Ray W. Baker now are termed delinquents and they are penalized 15 per cent on their first instalments.

The largest payment received yesterday was from the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers, $161,174.82, representing the first instalment of taxes.

PARADE TO OPEN W. O. W. CONCLAVE

Drill Teams And Members From Over State Will Take Part In Initiation Of 300

The presence in Fresno next Saturday of a vast throng of Woodmen of the World, here to take part in a great joint initiation by Fresno and Madera County camps, will be called to the attention of residents when a grand parade starts in the afternoon, led by automobiles containing head camp officers. The band will follow with drill teams from Manzanita Camp No. 160 and Alamo Camp, San Jose, and several hundred candidates bringing up the rear.

At Sunderland, head banker of the order, will preside at the class initiation. Other head camp officers will come to Fresno for the occasion, including Head Counsel I. I. Boak of Denver, Colo., who will deliver the only address of the evening.

The fact that the office of head banker is held by a Fresno man means an addition of between $250,000 and $300,000 to Fresno clearing house receipts every month.

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE UNDER WAY

Campaign Begins With Sum Of $1,037; Initial Meeting Held

With an initial sum of $1,037, the Salvation Army started its campaign this morning. A meeting of committeemen under the leadership of F. C. Chamberlain, campaign director, and F. A. Homan, chairman of the executive committee, was held at Salvation Army headquarters in the Hughes Hotel.

Workers' Report.

Each morning until the end of the drive, the workers will report at 9:30 A. M. and turn in their collections at the same place at noon. Voluntary workers are needed.

The city has been divided into four sections using Mariposa and J. Streets as lines. The Griffith-Mackenzie Building section will be canvassed by the Lion's Club. The Trust Building section by the American Legion, The Valley Bank division by the Scions and the Grand Central section by the Ad Club.

A committee from the Japanese Salvation Army of San Francisco will direct the work among their own countrymen.

Money Needed.

At present the Salvation Army is on the minus side of the ledger. In October, the sum of $35.42 remained in the treasury; $15,000 is the necessary amount for the continuation of the work in Fresno.

The income for last year, gleaned from the home service campaign and the Christmas relief was $11,988.58. General expenses were $661.03, supervision of the industrial school cost $598.64, and other expenditures were $1,218. The entire salary list amounted to $2,364.20 which averages the sum of between thirty and forty dollars a month for officers, most of whom are supporting families on the amount. The relief of the poor in Fresno cost the Salvation Army $2,437.06 last year.

NEW CARS FOR SANTA FE

Two thousand refrigerator cars will be built by the Santa Fe during the coming year, according to George H. Nelson, general manager of the Santa Fe refrigerator department, with offices in Chicago, who has been inspecting the local ice plants of the railroad. He is accompanied by Samuel M. Fulton, assistant manager, of San Francisco; L. J. Prather, general agent of Los Angeles; F. A. Maginnis, manager of ice plants of Los Angeles, and W. J. Mattern, traveling agent of Stockton.

Report Shows Deadly Diseases Afflict Stock

Blackleg, forage poisoning, anthrax, hog cholera and alvine plague caused a number of losses of live stock in Fresno County during the past month, according to the report of John F. McKenna, county livestock inspector, submitted to the board of supervisors to-day.

The first three diseases affected cows and horses, and the last caused the death of several hogs. In all cases sanitary precautions were taken in the disposal of the carcasses and the usual method of advising owners to vaccinate other animals was carried out.

POPULAR VISITOR HERE

William G. Sherwood, who was sought by Guy E. Leonard of the Fresno County Chamber of Commerce, walked into the chamber's offices yesterday and gave himself up. An eastern man requested the local body to find Sherwood but gave very meager details. They were enough, however, to result in a deluge of calls from those in the city knowing him, and a personal visit.

WARRANT ISSUED

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of William Brailsford, head of the Valley Coal Company for failure to qualify as a public weighmaster by posting a bond in compliance with the law. The warrant was issued from the office of Justice of the Peace George R. Graham, on the complaint of Blanchard Johnson, county sealer of weights and measures. Johnson claims that Brailsford did not answer nor comply with formal notices calling upon his to deposit his bond for one thousand dollars.

ANNULMENT ASKED.

She asks the court to restore her to her former name, Helen F. Youts.

RECORD MADE BY RAISIN GROWERS

All records for movement of raisins from plants of the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers for a period of one month were broken when the association shipped 1,110 cars during November, according to figures compiled by G. G. Watson, operating manager of the association.

Not only in the movement of cars to eastern points, but in delivery to raisins to plants, the association is making a fine showing. Up to last night, growers had delivered a total of 166,000 tons of raisins to all plants, against a total of 114,000 tons to the same date of last year.

During October of this year the total eastern movement was 1080, which was also a record, the same month of last year having been 1064 cars.

Transportation Better

There was a time this year when the Sun-Maid Growers were putting up more than a million of the 15 ounce packages a day, according to Watson.

The car situation is radically better, said the operating manager, but during October and November the association lacked cars every day to move its orders.

Speaking of the canned raisin production Watson said that the sizes of cans, one eight ounce and one twelve ounce, are being manufactured at the Armona plant. These canned goods are lithographed in five colors and the eight ounce is a distinctive green, while the twelve ounce is a distinctive blue. The cans hold the moisture in the raisins, and permit shipment to all points of the world so that the fruit arrives and stands indefinitely, in perfect condition. The Armona plant is running to capacity, turning out twenty tons per day of the canned raisins. Shipments are going to England and the Orient, and the canned raisin is expected to solve the problem of distribution throughout the southern states during summer months, said Watson.

Packing Finished

Packing at Yuba City is almost finished, Watson said, and that plant will probably close within a few days. The Yuba City pack is largely bleached stock, and there was a rapid movement from that district on account of the Smyrna situation. Almost the entire Yuba City crop was exported.

This is the first year that any appreciable tonnage has been received at Exeter. New receiving stations were maintained this season at Wasco, Delano, Exeter and Navalencia. No manufacturing was done at these points.

Most of the new receiving stations are for seedless varieties, said Watson, who pointed out that the new districts coming into bearing are almost entirely seedless varieties. The association plans to establish receiving stations in new districts until receipts are large enough to justify plants. Only two plants were built this year, one at Yuba City in the Marysville district, and one at Dinuba.

AUXILIARY HOLDS CHRISTMAS FAIR

Bazaar This Afternoon And To-night To Aid Ex-Service Men

To have the means to give assistance when an ex-service man finds himself in dire necessity through his own illness or that of members of his family, or through loss of his employment, the Women's Auxiliary to Fresno Post No. 4, American Legion, is holding a Christmas Fair in the Legion Hall to-day. The money derived from the sale of fancy work and other contents of the booths as well as from the various amusements is for that purpose.

Varied Amusements

Beginning early in the afternoon, those attending the fair will have the opportunity of purchasing anything from a package of needles to a glimpse of their future. Those who would dip into the unknown can do so by patronizing the fish pond or visiting the gypsy fortune teller.

A card party, starting early this afternoon, was to be the principal entertainment, until the dance commences shortly after 9 o'clock this evening.

Chicken Dinner

Those visiting the fair will have no reasonable excuse if they leave hungry, as a tea garden will function during the later hours of the afternoon, while a chicken dinner will be served between 5:30 P. M. and 7:30 P. M.

The teagarden is one of the features of the fair and is a duplication of a real Japanese tea room, having been arranged by Rev. J. K. Fukushima of the Japanese Congregational Church, who also arranged to have Japanese girls in their national costume act as attendants and brew the delectable beverage.

PERJURY CASE TO BE CONSIDERED

it would be necessary for her to prove she had a car so she would be in position to have given the receipt. She asked Mr. and Mrs. Wolferd to help secure a receipt proving her temporary ownership of a Ford sedan, and together they called on Casey Thompson, who said he thought the matter could be arranged, Mrs. Scott testified.

Others Involved.

Thompson instructed Grace Breckinridge to issue a receipt for a month's rental of a Ford sedan, in order that Mrs. Wolferd and Mrs. Scott should be "saved from embarrassment". Bradley agreed to the issuance of the receipt, she said.

Wolferd, in his testimony, declared that "Wilmot dragged the whole bunch of us into it."

Explaining his connection with the case, Scott said in a sworn statement that "Wilmot thought it would be all right for Mrs. Scott to give a receipt for $10, so that he would be breaking even on his expenses for the trip. I thought it was all right for her to give the receipt. Of course, when the thing came up about the $10 receipt, I naturally wanted to do everything to protect her."

Had To Testify.

"Did you know that your wife was going to testify that the receipt was genuine," he was asked.

"Yes, she had to testify to it."

"When your wife had given this $10 receipt to Wilmot, then it was represented to you in order to back that receipt it was necessary to have another to back it up?"

"Yes. The receipt for the $10 would call for the other," answered Scott.

Fred Wolferd, in his statement, said Wilmot approached him in Fresno and asked him if he knew of any Fresno person who owned a Ford sedan from which Wolferd could get a receipt for rental. Wolferd replied that Bradley had such a car, Wilmot explained, he testified, that the request for the receipt was a mere technicality. Wolferd then told of his meeting with Casey Thompson and corroborated much of the evidence given by Mr. and Mrs. Scott.

Thompson said in his statement that he gave the receipt for $50 for a month's rent on a Ford sedan, at the instance of Wolferd. Grace Breckinridge and Bradley merely corroborated the statements of the others in regard to the $50 receipt.

Bradley testified yesterday that he did cause the rental receipt to be issued to Mrs. Scott on the representations of Casey Thompson that Mrs. Wolferd and Mrs. Scott would get into serious trouble unless the receipt was forthcoming. He said that at the time he agreed to order the receipt he made it clear to Thompson that it was not to be used in any court proceedings.

Testimony Finished.

Taking of testimony in the Wilmot case came to a close to-day, and it is probable that the jury will receive its instructions and begin deliberations early to-morrow.

This afternoon, Professor James M. Hyde of Stanford University, who says he wrote certain letters to Washington pertaining to the case, will appear before the federal grand jury, when an alleged "conspiracy of propaganda" involving prominent San Francisco people will be aired.

A telegram was received to-day from Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, by Judge Van Fleet denying that he had any interest in the case. It had been stated that he had used his influence in Washington to secure a change of judges.

OAKLAND REALTORS TO VISIT FRESNO

Business Men En Route To Convention To Be Entertained

Oakland realtors en route to the state convention at Santa Ana will arrive here at 5 o'clock this evening, making headquarters at the Hotel Fresno where the Fresno board will welcome them. To-night they go on to Tulare, and to-morrow complete the trip to Santa Ana.

Secretary Harvey Humphrey sent out notices to-day to realtors that there will be no luncheon meeting to-morrow.

Secretary Humphrey says elaborate plans are being made for a big post-convention luncheon at the Hughes on Wednesday, December 13. At that time realtors who attended the Santa Ana meeting will report on the success of their efforts to lay the ground work for securing the state convention in 1924.

President Herbert Levy of the Fresno Board to-day asked that all realtors who can arrange to be present meet at the Hotel Fresno this afternoon to greet the Oakland delegation.

The Fresno group will include J. C. Forkner, who speaks on behalf of Fresno in the My Home Town contest.

BANK ROBBED OF SUM BY MANAGER

Thefts Cover Ten Years As Head; Confession Is Made

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Max W. Hensel, for the past ten years manager of the Harlem Branch of the Corn Exchange Bank was indicated for grand larceny recently after he had confessed to Walter E. Frew, president of the bank, to the theft of $51,912.48 during a period covering several years.

Thefts Covered

Hensel, who is thirty-two years old, went to work for the bank years ago as an office boy, and during all of his service had been connected with the one branch. He successfully covered up his thefts and eluded detection by bank examiners. He told of his repeated stealing only when an order was issued transferring him to a new branch in the Bronx.

When he made his confession Hensel made restitution for nearly half of the money he had taken. The officers of the bank announced that all of the loss was covered by insurance.

In making his confession to Mr. Frew and to Leslie Lockhart of 31 Chambers Street, his own attorney, Hensel said that he wanted "to take his medicine," and the matter was turned over to the District Attorney. Harold W. Hastings, assistant district attorney, said that Hensel had offered to enter a plea of guilty.

Hensel Married

Hensel is married and lives in Larchmont Gardens with his wife. They have no children. His repeated thefts were blamed on his desire to live beyond his means.

Hensel was charged specifically with the theft of $5,000 on October 16th last. When he told of his thefts he asked to be given a chance to help straighten things out. Hastings said it would be difficult to say how long Hensel could have kept up the thefts without detection if he had wished.

Six Men Go To Trial In Federal Court On Charges Of Eviction

Six men went on trial in federal court here this morning charged with unlawfully interfering with Frank W. Chatelain, who was endeavoring to occupy land near Independence, Inyo County, under the homestead laws.

The indicted men are D. C. O'Connor, Charles Newhaus, William Snodgrass, Joseph Fertic, Chester Smith and Cecil Porter.

The indictment charges that these six, armed with rifles or revolvers, forcibly ejected Chatelain from his property last April 22nd.

Chatelain testified this morning that he was plowing when the defendants approached him and forced him off the property, with the admonition not to set foot on it again.

The penalty for the crime charged in the indictment is ten years' imprisonment or $5,000 fine, or both, according to Assistant U. S. Attorney H. N. Ehle, who is prosecuting the case. The defense attorney is M. G. Gallaher.

A new plan in map mounting, in which maps are cut up and mounted in sections to be folded and put in atlases was explained at a meeting of secondary school principals yesterday afternoon in the office of Superintendent of Schools W. J. Cooper.

FIRST CLUBHOUSE FOR SCOUTS OPEN

Owned And Built Entirely By San Francisco Troops, Building Dedicated

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—The first clubhouse owned and built by Boy Scouts in the United States was dedicated Sunday by Troops 20 and 24, San Francisco Boy Scouts, at Camp Mantes, in Marin County. Three hundred Scouts, parents and friends, including Scout officials, took part in the dedication ceremony.

Among those who spoke at the ceremony were Samuel A. Clark, chairman of the San Francisco Council Boy Scout camp committee, and Raymond O. Hanson, Scout executive. Both stressed the importance of outdoor work, without which the Boy Scout movement could not exist. Dr. Robert Leggett dwelt upon the accomplishment of the two scout masters, Fred C. Schueter and Harold E. Hansen, in providing their troops with a week-end camp.

The clubhouse, designed by James T. Ryan, was built almost entirely by the Scouts themselves.

Thirty Passengers Injured As Wabash Train Wrecked

SHENANDOAH (Iowa), Dec. 5.—Thirty passengers were injured when Wabash passenger train number 144 en route to St. Louis from Omaha, was derailed six miles north of here last night.

None of the injuries is expected to prove serious, although a dozen passengers were rushed to the hospital.

The wreck was caused by the engine tender jumping the track while the train was traveling about thirty-five miles an hour. Four coaches, including a diner and smoking car, were derailed and rolled over on their sides.

lecture on home furnishings, and will give a practical demonstration of an oven cooked dinner; a boon to the busy housewife who wants an afternoon for herself. All the dishes in this dinner may be prepared before-hand, put in the oven and left to their own devices. When milady returns from her card party, the dinner is ready to be served without any fuss or flurry.

Dainties Served

As the dainties prepared by Mrs. Chase are served to the audience it is advisable to bring a little spoon and a small plate which may be slipped into one's hand bag, along with the pencil and paper for the notes every wise woman attending the lectures will be glad to take.

Well Worth While

And here's a prophecy made after the first day's lecture—you will come away with note-book full of recipes that are tastiest, and mind full of ideas that are new and practical and splendid!

Each lecture and demonstration is complete in itself. If you have not attended any of these most interesting lectures, plan to do so tomorrow. Mrs. Chase was brought to Fresno by The Bee to be of practical assistance to its women readers. If you have household questions take them to Mrs. Chase and let her help you solve them.

Many suggestions of the saving of time and energy are given by Mrs. Chase as the demonstrations proceed, and various advantages of the utensils or articles used are pointed out.

The auditorium has been fitted up into an exposition hall and there the exhibits of various Fresno merchants add interest to the scene.

Mrs. Chase seems to have solved the problem of the woman of today; her doctrines are those of an experienced woman of the world who believes that what is obviously the duty of a woman should be done, gracefully and without complaint. The drudgery of housework may be eliminated by a little care and thought.

Home Keeping

She believes that the home, and the keeping of the home is one of the highest and most noble of occupations. A woman may wash dishes and cook, without losing her dignity providing she does it in the proper spirit.

Every woman and girl will enjoy her lectures, and profit by them.

Cooking classes, and all the pupils of the grammar and high schools are cordially invited to Mrs. Chase's lectures.

Modesto Board Plans Mass Meeting; Bond Commission Invited

MODESTO (Stanislaus Co.), Dec. 5.—Members of the state bond certification commission were invited personally to present their attitude toward the distribution of power developed at the Don Pedro Dam, in the Modesto Irrigation District, by order of the directors at their meeting yesterday.

Mass Meeting Planned

If members of the commission accept the invitation, which Secretary Abbott placed in the mail this morning, arrangements will be made for a mass meeting of as many residents of the district as care to participate, at which meeting the whole situation will be carefully explained.

This step was taken upon advice of J. M. Walthall, attorney for the Modesto District, after the directors had submitted to him the letter which was received from the bond commission last week, wherein the commission stated it would "feel compelled to withhold authority for further bond issues, for the purchase or installation of expensive distribution systems, transmission lines and stand-by plants."

Commission Gives Reason

The letter of the commission gave the reason for this attitude as the "extreme hazard of attempting to distribute power by the district in occupied territory."

An attempt will be made to have the mass meeting, at which it is planned to have members of the bond commission in attendance held before December 20th, the date set for the recall election of irrigation directors, J. R. Broughton, C. A. Hilton, J. W. Guyler and H. J. Coffee.

Will Generate 9,000,000 Kilowatts

The Don Pedro Dam, which is being built jointly by the Modesto and Turlock Irrigation Districts, will generate approximately 100,000,000 kilowat hours of electricity, 10,000,000 will be turned over to the Pacific Gas and Electric Company for twenty-five years as payment for rights held by the company at the dam site, 60,000,000 kilowats will be the share of the Turlock District, and 30,000,000 will be apportioned to the Modesto District.

Bond Issue Not Sold

A bond issue of $395,000 voted for the construction of a transmission line has not been sold, being held up to await a decision by the bond commission.

At an election held several months ago the district was empowered to distribute the power generated at the dam, rather than sell it to the Pacific Gas and Electric Company on a five-year contract.

TULARE LADS ACQUITTED ON GIRL'S CHARGE

Verdict Returned At 3 A. M. To-day; Freed Youths Thank Jurors

VISALIA (Tulare Co.), Dec. 5.—Ed Kassuth and Lester Sanderson, youthful Tulare mechanics, were acquitted today on a statutory charge in which a 16-year-old girl of Tulare was the prosecutive witness. The jury returned its verdict at 3 o'clock this morning after deliberating from 6 o'clock yesterday evening following a trial lasting six and one-half days. The verdict was returned on the second trial of the young men, the first jury having disagreed.

Case To Jury Last Night

The case went to the jury last evening following a day devoted to argument in which all attorneys presented their views.

The first indication of the stand of the jury came at 9:45 o'clock last night when the judge was called back from home to give further instructions. Foreman Walter T. Drabnick of Visalia asking whether it would be possible for the jury to return separate verdicts for each of the two defendants. When the court informed the jurors this could be done they retired again.

Freed Men Thank Jurors

The defendants took occasion to personally congratulate the jurors.

WHEN Ralph De Palma, auto racer, went to jail for ten days because he drove his car 70 miles an hour on the Madera County highway. At the left is Ernest McCluskey, Madera County speed officer, who clocked the racer at Chowchilla and caused his arrest. In the center is De Palma and at the left Sheriff J. H. Barnett. The picture was taken in front of the county jail yesterday afternoon.

Friend Would Share Cell

De Palma's "Pal" Makes Request

Speeder Serving Term

MADERA (Madera Co.), Dec. 5.—A demonstration of the "Damon and Pythias" type of friendship was that displayed yesterday afternoon in the office of Sheriff John H. Barnett at the county jail here, when Ralph De Palma, automobile racer was officially locked up to begin his ten-day sentence for speeding on the highway in Madera County.

Men Are Inseparable

For more than a year Val Haresnape, assistant to the president of a Riverside cement company, by vocation and official timer for Beverly Hills, Fresno and Cotati speedways by avocation, has been De Palma's "pal." The two men are inseparable.

While Mrs. Haresnape in Los Angeles was striving to comfort Mrs. De Palma, Haresnape was making one of the most novel proposals ever presented to Sheriff Barnett.

Makes Novel Request

Haresnape in all seriousness, so he afterward said, requested that the sheriff lock him up with De Palma, that both of the men would work at any task the sheriff set out for them, that he would share the jail fare and prison bunk which will be the lot of the racing star. In return for this Haresnape asked that the sentence be reduced to five days each.

Barnett stated such a request had never been made before, and referred Haresnape to Judge R. G. Cornell.

Comforts Are Provided

Before leaving for a conference with the Chowchilla justice Haresnape provided De Palma will all the comforts which were permitted by jail officials. The racer will be provided with magazines and daily newspapers and a Madera store will supply him with any necessities which he requires.

Haresnape will communicate with him daily by telephone and telegraph.

De Palma was officially locked in jail here at 2:30 yesterday afternoon. He was assigned to cell number five in the upper deck of the jail, the portion reserved for those serving time on misdemeanor charges.

The veteran racer was given a very comfortable cell, which is provided with running water.

Has Seven Companions

Seven other prisoners occupy the upper deck, among them H. C. Blanchard, who is serving a ninety-day sentence for disorderly conduct, in connection with his attentions to Mrs. Clara Harlow, who was killed by her husband at North Fork several weeks ago as a result.

De Palma will take his turn with the other prisoners in keeping the deck clean, but will likely be given an opportunity to overhaul and repair the county automobiles if he feels disposed to work at the trade he knows best. This is according to Sheriff Barnett.

FRESNANS TO VISIT DE PALMA

Several Fresno friends of Ralph De Palma, the auto race driver, are planning to visit him in the Madera County Jail where he is confined for ten days for speeding. H. E. Patterson, manager of the Fresno Speedway Association, E. S. Waterman, former race driver; Bob Cavanaugh, hotel man, and Alfred Nielson, former race mechanician are planning to visit De Palma early next week.

Wife Charges Spouse Claimed Women Were All Crazy About Him

MODESTO (Stanislaus Co.) Dec. 5.—Exaggerated ego, coupled with blackmail and parsimony, go to make up the charges made by Bertha M. McCrary against Merritt L. McCrary in her divorce suit on file here to-day.

McCrary continually boasted that "the women were simply crazy about him," the complaint states. Mrs. McCrary also alleges that during the three years of their married life he gave her only $10 and that he threatened to kill her because she would not join him in blackmailing a young man.

Barring relapse her recovery is expected by physicians who until yesterday would not predict better than an even chance for her life.

Fresno State-C. O. P. Championship Battle Will Be Played Here

Agreement Reached To Stage Contest At Baseball Park. Jones Now Preparing Local Eleven For Deciding Argument Of Season

FRESNO State-College of the Pacific championship football game will be played here. That was the definite announcement made yesterday afternoon by Coach Jones of State. The clash will be at the Firemen and Policemen's Baseball Park.

Manager Quinley of the C. O. P. came down to Fresno yesterday and looked over the field, and conferred with Jones and Athletic Manager Palstine of State. Quinley says that the new high school field is too soft, and that the San Jose team is a light one that must play on a fast field in order to be at its best. He was taken out to the baseball park, and after looking the ground over, professed himself satisfied. The game consequently will be played here. The agreement is down in black and white, and has been signed.

Coach Arthur Jones made a strenuous effort to get the game played here. State college students are showing lots of pep these days and Jones would like to have the final grid battle of the season before them. He also believes that a big crowd of loyal Fresnans will be on hand to see State buck up against C. O. P. More people are expected to witness the game here than would see it if it was to be played in Modesto or Stockton, as was the wish of the C. O. P. manager and coach, "Swede" Righter.

Jones Grooms State

Jones now is in the process of preparing his eleven for the coming battle. All of the State players are in good shape for the fray, and unless some of them are injured in scrimmage before the end of the week, State will go on the field ready to put up the hardest battle of the entire grid season.

Last night Jones put his men through a hard scrimmage.

State may be termed a well balanced eleven. There are no outstanding stars. Jones has steadfastly refused to build his offense around any man, but has drilled the idea into his grid warriors that there are eleven men on the field who are equally responsible for victory or defeat.

Play As Unit

In the last two or three games his line has played good football. From end to end there has been no noticeable weakness nor a player who stands out brilliantly. They are all in there playing for State College. In the back field the same condition exists.

The baseball park here will give Righter's eleven the best chance to show its speed. C. O. P. has a bunch that is some pounds lighter than State, but is credited with plays that are fast and hard to diagnose. On the hard, smooth field at the ball park Righter may uncover all the speed in his team, and know that there will be no handicap under foot.

While Manager Quinley was here yesterday he agreed with Coach Jones on officials. Vere Abbott was named as referee, Pete Lens of Stockton as umpire and M. McCart of Tulare, head liner. In this selection the two elevens have a trio of officials who are highly capable and absolutely fair.

Four League Games Will Be Played By Y. M. C. A. Hoop Teams

Four league basketball games are scheduled at the Y. M. C. A. tonight. Golden Long, physical director, has issued a request that all teams be on hand promptly for their games.

The Y 45s will face the P. G. & E. Co. for the first game of the evening. The 45's are rounding into mid-season form and as they have played together for several years they form a very dangerous combination. The second game will be between the Y Unlimited and the Sun-Maids, and the Telephone Co. will hook up with the Fidelity Bank. The most evenly matched game most likely will be the Casner Bank of Italy conflict. Nichols of the bankers has had his eye on the hoop in every game played thus far. He has been the big point-maker of his team and his mates are giving him very good support. Martin and Maxson of the druggists are both dangerous men, and they will give the opposing guards plenty of work.

Horseshoe Tossers Of Porterville Will Meet Active Visalia Squad

(By Bee Bureau)

PORTERVILLE (Tulare Co.), Dec. 5.—Porterville horseshoe tossers in the recently organized Horseshoe Pitching Association will hold their first match contest tonight when they take on the veterans of the Visalia club. The club here has been playing for only a few months, while Visalia has had an active organization for some time.

The locals began pitching with the regulation shoes only a few weeks ago, but some excellent talent has been developed.

The contest here is expected to result in a series of county games, as several other cities have organized horseshoe tossing clubs, and a county championship is contemplated for the Spring season.

Iowa Professor Tells Home Folks Any Of California Teams Best

IOWA CITY (Iowa), Dec. 5.—Ralph W. Chaney, former Iowa University professor, now doing research work in California, stopped off here and told friends that California University has four teams practicing on the grid, and "any one of them could beat Iowa." He escaped on the next train.

Paddock Will Resume Track Work In Spring

PASADENA (Calif.), Dec. 5.—Charlie Paddock will resume running in the Spring. This statement, made by the "fastest man in the world," this morning, refutes, in Charlie's opinion, the criticisms that have been made of him for not entering in various meets recently.

"I will re-enter the University of Southern California in February to take up certain courses. That will prevent me from going to New Zealand, where I have been invited to run. In the Spring, I will enter the inter-collegiate meet in the East, as a member of the U. S. C. team."

FIGHT RESULTS

NEW YORK—Billy Ryckoff won the judges' decision last night over Sammy Nable. A riot followed when the crowd took exception to the decision.

Practice Tee On Club Roof To Be Ready Soon

An enclosed golf course, to practice driving, is being constructed on the roof of the commercial club and will be completed the first of next week House Manager Jenkin announced to-day. The practice tee and enclosed canvas bank will be patterned after similar roof courses in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

There are many golf enthusiasts, members of the commercial club, who will take advantage of this means of improving their game. Numbered among the club's members are many boosters for the proposed municipal links in Fresno.

The ball when driven will strike against a padded wall when directed straight and in other cases will be kept on the roof by a wire netting. The end is raised so the balls will roll back to the tee.

A new course record for local golfers to shoot at may be hung up by Walter Hagen or Joe Kirkwood when they shoot their exhibition match here Thursday. The best nine hole score here at present on the temporary greens is thirty-two made by the Annandale professional, Viv Owen and "Biff" Oliver, local assistant. Par is thirty-seven.

At Sacramento Monday the two stars played an excellent game. Paired together in the morning they defeated Jess Childs and Lauren Ipson, Sacramento amateurs and in the afternoon Hagen and Upson defeated Kirkwood and Childs, two up at the sixteenth.

The Hagen-Kirkwood exhibition Thursday will not interfere with the women playing in the morning George Howard announced to-day. Thursday is regular women's day and the fair golfers will have priority during the morning. It is expected that all the women golfers will be present at the exhibition match.

* * *

Gerald Thomas, chairman of the greens committee requests that women spectators do not wear high heels. The turf is still soft.

Morte Dutro, well-known Pebble Beach pro, arrived in Fresno to-day and played a practice game with Howard this afternoon. The two will oppose Hagen and Kirkwood.

* * *

Kirkwood's exhibition of trick shots at Sacramento was exceedingly entertaining. He entertained the crowd for an hour or more with fancy shots. One of his favorite shots is a mashie approach to the green in which he actually makes the ball roll backwards about three or four feet after it has hit the lawn and has taken two or three forward bounces. He played hooks and slices at will and drove 200 yards with an ordinary straight faced putter. He demonstrated the use of the different clubs and also put on some good comedy golf that kept the crowd in a roar of laughter.

Valley Clubs To Send Representatives Here

Valley league baseball will be the big topic for the next few days. From Hanford, Visalia, and Dinuba come reports that all those connected with the game are anxiously awaiting the meeting which will be held here at the Commercial Club Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

From Hanford, W. H. Scott, one of the league directors will come up to do the balloting for his club. Others who will come from Hanford are Steve Ross, George Aydelotte and J. L. Smith, the league secretary.

Dr. C. A. Tillotson, vice-president of the league and a director, will represent Dinuba. Several enthusiasts are expected to accompany him. George Cobb and J. R. Barboni will be here from Visalia. The local club will be represented by W. D. Coates, a league director, and a number of others among them, Frank Smith, Jack Files, E. L. Smith and Bart Harvey.

Al C. Joy, president of the league stated to-day that the meeting would be taken up largely in completing the business of the 1922 season and discussing plans for the coming year. A committee probably will be appointed to interview the baseball heads in other valley towns with a view of adding at least two and probably four more clubs to the circuit, Stockton and Merced, it is reported, will have representatives at the session.

President Joy stated that there have been a number of inquiries coming to his office from excellent baseball talent who are turning their attention to the San Joaquin Valley with a view to making this their future home and that in case the league is enlarged to eight clubs there will be no difficulty in securing players who will keep the standard of baseball up where it was last season.

Field Marks In American Show Brilliant Work

In a general sense, fielding in the American League during 1922 was not of the high character that obtained during many past seasons, according to the averages. However, individual exploits of the most sensational description were so frequent as to be almost commonplace. These brilliant feats were greeted with generous approval and they served to offset the defects in play that were evident to all students of the game.

The champion Yankees tied in fielding percentages with Chicago with the fine average of .975. In fact, New York was first, for excepting one outfield position, the daily performances, individual and team play ranked from good to excellent. The White Sox in their second year of rebuilding were much better in the field but still lack skill in several places. Detroit owes its third place position to the tremendous improvement attained in two infield positions, while Philadelphia and St. Louis displayed stars in stations that had been guarded in mediocre fashion in recent previous years.

Great Work At First

Taking the various positions in detail it may be said that the most brilliant work was done around first base. The catching also was most excellent but the work of the outfielders as a whole was not equal to that of some former years, though individuals here and there displayed amazing skill throughout the season. The weak spot in the league is at third base where mediocre ability has the doubly hard task daily, of smothering down drives that the great players of previous years rarely encountered.

An unprecedented number of double and triple plays were sparkling features throughout the season. Washington set a record with 168 double and one triple play. St. Louis beat all former counts with 155, while Cleveland, Chicago and Boston all executed more than 140 two-ply killings. Chicago and Boston each made two triple plays and Cleveland, Washington and Philadelphia one each.

Maul had high score with 214 and also high series with 600.

W. W. Giddings Wins News Trophy Again

(By Bee Bureau)

MODESTO (Stanislaus Co.), Dec. 5.—W. W. Giddings for the second time is winner of the trophy offered by the Evening News for competition on the golf course of the Stanislaus Country Club.

Giddings won the finals from Arthur Aiken after Aiken had defeated Warren Giddings, son of "W. W." Aiken eliminated Giddings, Jr., two up. He forced Giddings, Sr., to go the full eighteen holes, when the latter won one up.

A tournament is being arranged to celebrate the opening of the new club house the latter part of December.

AKRON (Ohio)—Tut Jackson, colored heavyweight, stopped Walter Archer, Akron, in the fifth round.

Chiefs Of Bushers Discuss Deals At Annual Sessions

LOUISVILLE (Ky.), Dec. 5.—With nothing particular to do, the guiding minds of the "bush leagues" went into session here to-day.

Owners, managers and shareholders of practically every minor league baseball club in the country were gathered for the annual session of the national association.

With the draft question announced as permanently shelved, with no issues to war over, the annual conclave of the "little fellows" turned itself almost into a market of players. Fringing the gathering of minor magnates were the high moguls of the major leagues, ready to sell rookies or hear the bottom prices on the prize products of last year's crop on the small time.

Talk Of Deals

There was talk of many deals but confirmation was lacking, due to the tendency of the delegates to hold off the hot stuff until the last minute.

The Cleveland Indians agreed to pay $50,000 to the Milwaukee club of the American Association for the services of Glenn Myatt, a young catcher sent to the association from the Philadelphia Athletics, according to a report from a very reliable source.

Jack Dunn Expected

Jack Dunn, manager of the Baltimore International League champions, was due to arrive to-day. Three major league clubs were waiting to swoop down on him to talk business over Joe Boley, his star shortstop.

Ty Cobb, manager of the Detroit Tigers, said he was ready to make an offer for him and the Chicago White Sox also would like to have him, but the St. Louis Cardinals were said to have the inside of the track.

Commissioner K. M. Landis was on the scene early to-day. Saying that he was present merely as a spectator, he would not consent to an interview.

Warner Facing Hard Problem In Tech Hoop Five

J. W. Warner, coach of the Fresno Technical High basketball five held first practice yesterday with a large squad reporting. Warner faces a hard task this year in practically rebuilding his team.

Of last year's quintet there is but one in school now. Curtis, one of the guards, is the regular available while Larson and Loftin, substitute guards, and Bruesing, a sub center, make up all that is left of last year's squad. Warner faces the prospect of starting the season with a bunch of light and inexperienced candidates.

A number of games have been arranged. Before the holidays Sanger, Easton and Clovis will be played here. Following the Christmas vacation Lemoore, Fowler, Fresno High, Selma and Reedley will be taken on.

In the inter-class games at Tech yesterday the 10 A and 8 B teams were returned the winners. The 10 A five defeated 9 B by a score of 18 to 10, while the 8 B quintet took the measure of the 7 B by a count of 10 to 4.

The scores:

9-B (10)		10-A (18)

San Diego And Gardena Schools To Play For Title

SAN DIEGO (Calif.), Dec. 5.—The Southern California prep football championship will be decided Saturday at a place yet to be decided, when San Diego and Gardena high schools meet. San Diego defeated Santa Ana Saturday and Gardena won from Bishop, leaving the two teams alone in the field.

New England Colleges Ban Professional Coaches

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.), Dec. 5.—Five New England colleges have accepted the plan to abolish professional coaches and to place their teams under the supervision of faculty coaches. The schools are Wesleyan, Union, Bates, Trinity and Hamilton.

Blewett Starts Basketball Work At Fresno High

Coach James Blewett of the high school began working his hoop sharks for the rapidly approaching basketball season this afternoon. Blewett has arranged a series of interclass games to be played this week. Active practice will take place next Monday.

The seniors, 4 B's have the advantage, according to the high school dope. Captain Bancroft and Alfred Sako are first string men. Bernard, Martin and Baldwin are all players who know the game. The only serious opposition that is expected to come up against them during the schedule is the 3 B's, under the guidance of George Telonicher, last year forward.

Sixty candidates turned out for the first call yesterday afternoon and considering the number Blewett should not have much trouble in turning out a team of first class calibre. Curtis Chambers was elected captain of the 4 A's; Steve Bancroft of the 4 B's; Ed Briars of the 3 A's; George Telonicher of the 3 B's; John Endurt of the 2 A's, and Minzer of the 2 B's.

The schedule is as follows: Tuesday, December 5, 2 B vs. 3 A; 4 A vs. 2 B; 4 B vs. 2 A. Wednesday, December 6, 3 B vs. 2 A; 3 A vs. 4 B; 4 A vs. 2 B. Thursday, December 7, 4 A vs. 2 A; 4 B vs. 2 B; 3 B vs. 3 A. Friday, December 8, 4 A vs. 3 A; 3 B vs. 4 B; 3 A vs. 2 B. Monday, December 11, 4 A vs. 4 B; 3 B vs. 2 B; 3 A vs. 2 A.

SIKI TO TAKE CASE INTO COURT

PARIS, Dec. 5.—The Carpentier-Siki bout will be re-fought in the courts as a result of the Senegalese charge that it was a frame-up for Georges to win and that he "crossed" the Frenchman and knocked him out.

Deputy Diagne, who has come to the assistance of Siki, retained a lawyer with the intention of prosecuting his suit to have the negro's title of European light-heavyweight champion restored to him.

Siki, in a statement made in Diagne's presence, alleged it was arranged that Carpentier should win in the fourth.

"I had never been beaten and I decided to disobey my manager's orders," said Siki. "I thought I would win more money."

Bears Have Seven Representatives On All-Pacific Eleven

Washington State, University Of Washington, Stanford And Southern California College Have One Man On Crack Aggregation Of Players

All Pacific Coast Football Team For 1922

Position	Player	College
Left tackle	Dunton	Washington State
Center	De Groot	Stanford
Right guard	Calland	U. S. C.
Right tackle	Beam	California
Right end	Muller	California
Quarterback	Erb	California
Left half	Ziel	University of Washington
Right half	Nichols	California
Fullback	Morrison	California

By M. D. TRACY
United Press Staff Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—California has seven representatives and Washington State, University of Washington, Stanford and the University of Sothern California have one representative each on the all Pacific Coast football team for 1922.

The team was selected by the sporting editors or football writers of nine leading Pacific Coast newspapers.

Each paper made its independent selection and these were combined into a composite team, representing the majority opinion on each position to be filled, of the nine editors who joined in the work.

Football followers who were acquainted with the plan believed it represented the nearest possible approach to an impartial and accurate selection of an all-coast team.

Two Unanimous Selections

In making the selections two positions were filled by a unanimous agreement. These were full back, for which Morrison of California was named, and one of the end positions, for which all selected "Brick" Muller. Morrison's record of having scored more points than any player in the country this year, his ability as a line plunger and his value at the kicking game, made him an unquestioned choice. All agreed that Muller, because of his forward passing, his defensive ability and the threat he always holds on the offensive, had no competition.

Erb of California was the choice of eight sporting editors for quarterbacks. The ninth favored Galloway of U. S. C. yet, it would seem highly questionable whether the Trojan, valuable as he proved to his team, could be considered the equal of Erb as a field general.

Numerous Candidates

The half back positions found numerous candidates. Nichols of California headed the list as the first choice of six editors; Ziel of Washington came next, with four editors picking him. Baker of U. S. C. was favored by three for a half back position, two paid well deserved attention to Wilcox of Stanford, while King of Oregon, Nesbit of California and Stivers of Idaho had one vote each for first choice.

Passing to the line positions, Dud De Groot, Stanford captain, Callison of Oregon and Gallagher of California, were the candidates for center. De Groot won his place with five editors giving him as their first choice; Callison had three strong backers and Gallagher one.

Clark of California was the favorite among the guards, with Calland of U. S. C. second, and they were awarded the two positions.

Kuhn First Choice

Kuhn of Washington, however, was first choice of three papers. Dean of California and Shields of Oregon were picked by two and Faville of Stanford received one vote.

Selection of tackles brought out a wide difference of opinion. Seven names were advanced, including Beam of California, N. Anderson of U. S. C.; Dunston of Washington State, Locey of Oregon Aggies, Ingram of Washington University, Stanley of St. Marys and Grimm of Washington.

On final analysis, however, Dunton of Washington State was found to be the heaviest favorite with five editors naming him as first choice, while Beam came next, the favorite of four.

The remaining end position went to Berkey of California, who was first choice of six of the sports writers. Hall of Washington and Phythian of U. S. C. were the others given consideration.

Nine Editors Collaborate

The nine editors who collaborated in the selection of the team represented all parts of the coast. From Seattle, the Seattle Star and the Times were represented.

Portland furnished selections by George Bertz of the Journal and Billy Stopp of the News. Five California papers, including Ray J. Smith of the Los Angeles Herald, Madison Kerby of the San Francisco News, Ed Frayne of the Los Angeles Record, the Oakland Post-Enquirer and one other leading paper of the bay region completed the list.

Lions And Exchange Clubs Will Play For 'Y' Baseball Title

Y. M. C. A. indoor baseball fans declare that the coming Lion-Exchange Club battle for the supremacy of the Civic Club League Thursday evening is to be a battle royal. Both teams have suffered one defeat, the Exchange by the Lions, and the Lions by the University.

The University Club, which defeated the Lions week before last in a very tight contest, believe that in their new pitcher, Everetts, they have found the secret of success and have issued a challenge to the winner of the league to a post season contest.

Wakefield of the Lions will oppose Baldwin of the Exchange Club. Both men are fast pitchers and are trying for the strikeout record of the league. The game will be called at 5:30 o'clock.

WILL INVADE CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Carnegie Tech gridders will invade Chicago next October to play Chicago University, it was announced by Director Stagg.

Lions And Nooners Postpone Contest

The Lions and Y Nooner's volleyball game has been postponed indefinitely. Volleyball is creating a great deal of interest among the older members of the local Y. Fresno has been noted among the volleyball fans of the state for developing some of the best sharks in the game. The team put forth by the local Y has always been near the top in the state meets.

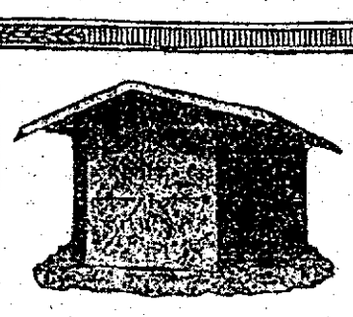

At the present time the Y. M. C. A. team, the Kiwanis, the Realtors, and the Rotary are tied for first place, with the Wonder and Y Nooner's ranking next.

GAME CALLED OFF

CEDAR RAPIDS (Iowa), Dec. 5.—Coe College will not meet Lombard December 9th on the gridiron to decide the college championship of the middlewest. Coe officials are opposed to post-season games.

RILEY GETS DECISION

DALLAS (Tex.), Dec. 5.—Mickey Riley, Dallas junior lightweight, won the decision over Abe Kabakoff, Memphis, in eight rounds.

No bother or worry for you—simply place your order and we do the rest—that's part of our service.

These attractive garages are not "Ready Cut" but are built in sections that nail together. They are well built—permanent and pass the necessary city building ordinances.

No need to leave your car out on these frosty nights when a 10x16 garage may be purchased for $110—$25 down and $5 per month. Other sizes in proportionate cost. Why—the depreciation alone on your car in this weather would pay for a garage in a very short time.

Let us take your order now. Visit our factory and investigate our

AGAIN WE SAY

THE BEST CLOTHES MADE IN AMERICA ARE HERE

The best tailors and designers in America do not produce any better Suits and Overcoats than those shown right now at this store. Others get higher prices than we do, but they do not give any better styles or quality. Thousands of men in Central California depend on us to keep them in clothes and they are the best dressed men in their communities.

At a Saving of Ten Dollars

Every Suit and Overcoat we sell here is priced at least ten dollars less than the same garments are sold elsewhere on the Pacific Coast. Our big purchase volume, our factory connections and our low cost of doing business enables us to sell at the minimum price, which means a saving of not less than ten dollars a garment.

---BETTER STYLES
---BETTER FIT
---LONGER WEAR
---LESSER COSTS

Everything that contributes to the betterment of any garment is incorporated in our Suits and Overcoats. Everything that contributes to the selling of Suits and Overcoats at the lowest possible price is taken advantage of here.

We operate on the smallest possible selling margin. We own an interest in the factories which produce our clothes and we have the privilege of buying our woolens direct from the woolen manufacturers and have our clothes made to our order directly in the factories in which we own a part interest.

We can and do save our customers much. Don't pay more than our price for suits and overcoats.

Then gathering will be for the purpose of considering group financing of the project.

AUTOPSY HELD IN MOONSHINE DEATH

T. P. Folliard Died From Poisonous Liquor Is Verdict

An autopsy was held this morning on the body of T. P. Folliard, 30, which was found on the floor at the rear of 1821 G Street beside a jug of moonshine liquor. It was discovered at the autopsy that Folliard had died from drinking poisonous liquor.

Woman Finds Body

The dead man was found by Mrs. Maude Mattos when she called at his residence. She entered the room and stepped on the body of the dead man. According to Deputy Coroner R. S. Minkel, who took charge of the body yesterday it had been dead for several days.

Still In Room

In the room were found a copper still, a five gallon barrel of wine and two and one-half barrels of mash.

Mrs. Mattos, the dead man's landlady figured prominently in the recent police probe before the grand jury.

Inspectors E. A. Fornes and Albert D. Truesdell investigated the conditions surrounding the death of Folliard.

An inquest will be held to-morrow at 10:00 A. M.

Birthday Death Wish Cited As Divorce Cause

On the last birthday of Anna Louise Faulkner she waited patiently for some expression of greetings, or happy returns, from her husband, William Joseph Faulkner. Disturbed at his prolonged silence, she inquired why he did not say something nice to her on the occasion of her birthday. He said: "Happy returns—! It would be God's blessing if you were dead."

This is one of the charges made in the divorce suit filed by Mrs. Faulkner here yesterday. She asks divorce on the grounds of cruelty and inhuman treatment.

According to the petition the couple were married in 1905 and separated in Fresno last Saturday. They have two children, aged 10 and 7. The husband is employed by the Edison Company at Big Creek.

County Hospital Name Changed At Meeting Of Board Of Supervisors

Work will start immediately on the improvement of the mile stretch of Ventura Avenue between the east city limits and Maple Avenue. The contractor's bond was approved yesterday by the board of supervisors and the contractor. T. A. Hanrahan was instructed to proceed promptly with the work.

Yesterday afternoon's meeting of the supervisors fas the first session in December and they will be in almost continuous session now for about two weeks.

A committee from the county welfare board appeared before the supervisors yesterday with the request that the name of the Fresno County Hospital be changed to The General Hospital of Fresno County. The new name was adopted.

The supervisors voted to accept the road improvement work between Malaga and Del Rey, known as Route 18, Section A of the county highway system.

The board voted to open bids on Friday, December 8, for the building and repairing of concrete culverts and bulkheads throughout the county during 1923.

Final Red Cross Work Inaugurated At Meet At Chamber Of Commerce

Final efforts of Red Cross campaign workers to obtain $15,000 in Fresno in order to carry on the humanitarian program of the Fresno Chapter, American Red Cross, were inaugurated to-day after a conference of roll call workers at the Chamber of Commerce Building.

Workers led by George F. Shapp, William Glass, Rev. Thomas Clayton, Peter Rasmussen, F. R. Bekins, Gus Manhiem, Frank F. Minard and D. L. Newman obtained excellent results in a canvass for large subscriptions to the Red Cross budget.

Partial returns from various towns indicate that Fresno County will not be far below its quota of $25,000, according to a statement issued to-day by Franklin Lowney, vice-chairman of the drive.

Mystery Of Buried Car Cleared By Statement

A portion of the mystery surrounding the discovery of the parts of an automobile buried on the property of Al Miller, 125 Modoc Street, last September, has been cleared with the announcement yesterday that the car was the property of the State Compensation Insurance Fund, driven by R. J. McDevitt, of that bureau.

In November 1921, McDevitt reported to local authorities that his car had been stolen. Nearly a year later, Miller, digging in his garage, unearthed portions of the chassis of an automobile.

The engine number and other means of identification were sent to the state motor vehicle department and the announcement resulted from a search of department records.

Neighbors of Miller's state that a family by the name of Blackford lived at this residence prior to Miller's occupancy.

Early Reminiscences Of County Are Given

Personal reminiscences of Fresno County fifty years ago, when the city was a mere wilderness, with a few inhabitants scattered among the foothills and the thought of a railroad but a vague dream of the future, were told by L. A. Winchell, president of the Fresno Historical Society at a meeting of the society last evening.

J. C. McCubbin told of the researches to get the original location of Scottsburg, a pioneer town on Kings River which was swept away by devastating floods in the sixties.

PLAINTIFF GETS JUDGMENT.

A judgment for $1,060 damages was awarded J. O. Anderson against C. R. Anderson, and others, by Superior Judge C. E. Beaumont yesterday for injuries received in an automobile accident.

CLARA PHILLIPS HAS MADE ESCAPE

Sawed Bars In Window Give Mute Evidence Of Prisoner's Flight

which Sheriff Traeger declared was without parallel in jail history so far as he had any knowledge.

"I have never before heard of a woman sentenced for murder escaping from jail," he said. "But its like her. No other woman ever tried to beat another up with a hammer."

Mrs. Phillips who was convicted of second degree murder for the killing of Alberta Meadows, was under sentence of ten years to life imprisonment, and had been granted a short stay of execution in order to permit her attorney to prepare an appeal.

Appeared Resigned

She had expressed resignation and had not appeared to be plotting any desperate measures to evade the sentence which she said herself, "might have been a whole lot worse." While in jail she went about her regular duties and in no way acted suspiciously, it was said.

Mrs. Phillips, according to the alienists who have examined her and as exhibited in her conduct during the most emotional scenes of her spectacular trial, is one of the most inscrutable women in the history of crime.

She has the ability of completely concealing the emotions and feelings she is experiencing, and further has demonstrated her ability to keep silent.

Denied Crime

Accused of attacking Mrs. Meadows, whom she believed had stolen the love of her husband, and beating her to death in a fierce, primitive manner, Mrs. Phillips steadfastly denied she had committed the crime, and for months refused to utter a word about it, until she took the witness stand at her trial.

She perserved an air of indifference and composure from the moment of her by no means casual capture in Tucson, Arizona, and smiled as she walked from the jail to the court room through crowds of people who hissed and booed her.

Escape Characteristic

Her sudden and daring escape, with perfect disregard of the consequences the act would have upon her sentence, was characteristic, all who have observed her declared.

CLEMENCEAU IS HARDING GUEST

have been arranged over the telephone by Wilson and Clemenceau.

At Lincoln's Tomb

Following the White House visit, the Tiger drove to the beautiful white memorial of Abraham Lincoln in Potomac Park and again paid homage to the great American. He stood with bowed head before the great marble statute, which towers in the big white structure.

Clemenceau was introduced to Mr. Harding by Jules Jusserand, French ambassador. When he appeared at the executive office, his famous slouch hat, which almost covers his eyes, was missing and in its places was a high silk one of the diplomatic style.

Didn't Like Stiff Hat

He apparently didn't feel at home in the new hat. He shuffled out of the president's office and left it on Mr. Harding's desk. He didn't miss it until he was in his motor car.

Clemenceau will have the opportunity to present his case to two of the leading cabinet officers at lunch to-day. Seated on his right and left will be Secreary of State Hughes and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. The luncheon will be at the home of Henry White, Clemenceau's Washington residence.

To-night he is expected to speak briefly before the Southern Society.

THE WEATHER

Local Office U. S. Weather Bureau Fresno, California, December 5, 1922. 609-612 Rowell Building. Telephone 150.

Forecasts Till 5 P. M. Wednesday

FOR FRESNO AND VICINITY: Rain to-night and Wednesday; fresh southerly winds.

FOR NORTHERN CALIFORNA: To-night and Wednesday rain.

General Weather Conditions

A rapid decline in barometic pressure which set in along the north Pacific Coast yesterday morning continues there this morning and a well defined disturbance is central at sea off the coast of Oregon. Rain began along the northern California Coast yesterday and in the Sacramento and lower San Joaquin Valleys last night. The Eastern storm is passing into the St. Lawrence Valley. It was attended during the last twenty-four hours by rain in Oklahoma and northeastward over New England. Much higher pressure with attendant fair and much cooler weather has followed in the Plains, Mississippi Valley and upper Lake region where it is from 20 to 30 degrees colder. Temperatures are much below zero in Montana.

Owing to the northern storm, rain at intervals and fresh southerly winds may be expected in this valley during the next thirty-six hours

CHILI PEPPERS SCARCE, HIGHER

Bells, Eggplant, Tomatoes And Cucumbers Arrive In Abundance

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—Bell peppers, eggplant, tomatoes and cucumbers are arriving from San Diego and Imperial Valley in more liberal supply. Because of the increasing supplies, lower prices generally prevailed on bell peppers and cucumbers.

Hothouse cucumbers are selling slowly as they show very little improvement in quality over cucumbers grown outside. Chili peppers are very scarce and quotations range from 8 to 9c per pound on them.

EXPERT GIVES INVESTMENT AID

John K. Barnes Writes Interestingly Of Trading In Securities

By JOHN K. BARNES
Financial Editor The World's Work And The Century

"How can I invest $1,000 to the best advantage?" is a question that is often asked me. It comes from workingmen who can hardly express themselves intelligently, from college professors who are able to save a little from their meager salaries, from stenographers who are beginning to consider the future, from young men who are starting to build up an estate, from doctors, ministers, and others who feel the need of investment advice. The Liberty Loans have turned millions of people to thinking about investments.

Previously, much of this money fell into the hands of promoters who for years have sown their seeds of deception and reaped a harvest of dollars from credulous people. "The public is now becoming more discriminating. The Liberty Loans have shown the advantage of receiving regular interest or dividend payments instead of unredeemed promises, and the securities which for years have made such payments are becoming popular. One public utility company, for instance, taking advantage of this growing interest, has increased the number of its stockholders 35,000 in nine months.

The answer to this question of how to invest $1,000 depends somewhat on the conditions that will surround the investment. A woman with little or no great earning power should not take the risks which a healthy young man with no dependents might take. If it is the first investment, however, no great amount of risk should be taken by anybody. As additional securities are added, one can diversify his or her list, thus spreading the risk, and can then buy securities that are somewhat less safe to get the higher return they give. But the difference between 5 per cent and 7 per cent is only $20 a year on a thousand, and it is not worth while to risk the loss of the thousand in order to gain the twenty.

One of the safest and best investments that a person can make with $1,000 is in a good savings bank. Such a bank invests its deposits in a diversified list of high grade bonds. As safe as this would be the purchase of Liberty Loan bonds. Next after those, in point of attractiveness as well as safety might come the British Government external loan 5½ per cent bonds due 1931; then a good hydroelectric power company bond such, for example, as the Pacific Gas & Electric first and refunding mortgage 6s due 1941; and for those willing to take a little more risk on foreign governmental bonds, the Kingdom of Denmark 6s due 1942. These are but examples of many of their kind. The return on them ranges from 4½ per cent to 6 per cent in the order that I have named them. If one wishes more than that, real estate mortgage bonds, when issued by houses of the best reputation, seem to me the next best field to turn to. But at present there are certain dangers in that field which I shall deal with in a later article.

NEW YORK MART IS IRREGULAR

General List Is Affected To Some Extent By Recoveries

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Considerable irregularity in the general list attested to the extent to which the short interest had been reduced by the sharp recoveries from the lows reached early last week.

It is true that Standard dividend paying rails were unsettled by the prospect that the year's payments on Great Northern preferred will total only 5 per cent, but heavy selling of representative issues failed to bring about a renewal of the general decline.

Wall Street expected Studebaker to sell off on announcement of the 25 per cent stock dividend. This custom has become so habitual on distribution of similar character that the bear element welcomes the opportunity to pound down Studebaker but this stock showed a strong tone after the news was out.

Two Great Mergers Now Control Steel Industry

Second only to the United States Steel Corporation in magnitude is the merger of the Bethlehem and Midvale companies, with a combined annual capacity of 7,600,000 tons of metal.

This is about one-third that of the first-named consolidation, which has a total capitalization of about $1,410,000,000 and is the largest corporation in the world.

It appears that the United States Department of Justice is not expected to object to this new merger, and that a perfectly good "understanding" exists between the Bethlehem-Midvale managers and United States Steel.

But whatever economies may be effected by this latest combination, it is not at all probable that the public will share in the benefits.

On the contrary, it is probable that actual competition will be lessened rather than increased, and that high prices will be maintained instead of lowered.

With the aid of the tariff to give them control of the American market, the "understanding" between these two gigantic corporations may enable them to fix rates to suit themselves.

Discrimination Brings All Law Into Disrepute

There is no doubt that when you are "up against the law," what happens to you depends very largely on who you are and how many friends you have.

A moving picture actress by the name of Edyth Sterling was arrested in Los Angeles last week for speeding. She was sentenced to serve five days in jail; served three of them, and has now been released on parole because her presence is "absolutely essential" to the success of a wild-west show which is being held in that city this week.

In this case, the city authorities of Los Angeles were waited upon by a deputation of influential citizens, who are deeply concerned over the success of the wild-west show aforesaid.

The result has already been stated.

There is no need to multiply instances of the kind. They occur every day, as every one knows. And the result of this is simply that no man who is well known or influential particularly minds being arrested for traffic violations. He knows—and many of them quite cheerfully say—that there is small chance of anything very unpleasant coming from such an arrest.

Meanwhile, leading citizens complain daily about the growing disrespect for law in the public mind. And they are quite right; disrespect for law is growing; it is reaching truly alarming proportions.

But the blame for this is not in the mind of The People.

It lies squarely before the doors of lawmakers who make laws that cannot be enforced, and of courts which do not administer such laws as can be enforced without fear or favor.

One bad law, one unjust decision, one example of discrimination, brings the entire fabric of law into disrepute.

You cannot tell one man that he may not do a certain thing and another that he may, and expect the first man to pay much attention to you.

Neither can the courts, and it is about time they stopped trying to do so.

"They Say!"

A pitiably small audience last night heard the wonderful voice of Gadski, enriched beyond its normal, pouring forth the music of a soul defiant to lies.

The traducers of Gadski won in a money way.

By reiteration of rumors they strangled the truth, but in their moment of victory, they suffered defeat, for the spiritual triumph of Gadski rose above it.

That few heard Gadski leaves the lies against her as black as ever.

Still the department of justice, the vice-president, the federal court stand as her guarantor and the refutation of her libelers.

But "they say," the miserable tongue of malice that throughout the ages, has poisoned the well of truth; "they say" that has robbed virgins of their chastity; "they say" that has stripped honest men of their reputation; "they say" that blackened the character of Lincoln; "they say," that hides in alleys and stabs from the dark, won another victory.

A great singer whom every official source endorses has been spattered with mud.

"They say!"

WHY SHOULD AMERICAN BOYS BE LOANED TO FRANCE?

It is given to few men and but seldom to squeeze strong arguments into few words.

Julius Kahn of the house military committee did it in speaking against a pact with France to defend her against German agression.

Kahn said:

American mothers naturally would want to know why their sons should jump to the aid of France when the French woman did not raise boys to defend her borders.

There is no reason, for the weakness of France against the strength of Germany lies in the race suicide which for the past two generations has been enfeebling that republic.

The Germans have been marrying and multiplying.

The French have married without multiplication.

The multiplication of the Germans raised their country from 40,000,000 in 1870 to 65,000,000 in the World War.

The subtraction of the French dwindled them from the same 40,000,000 in 1870 to 39,000,000.

France can manufacture guns but she lacks the men to man them.

American mothers should not loan to France the sons which French mothers fail to bear.

A "traffic judge" in Detroit began what since has become a foolish practice of imposing "freak" sentences upon violators of speed laws; such as requiring an offender to visit a morgue to view the corpse of some victim of reckless driving.

This has tended so much to bring law and the courts into disrespect that the American Bar Association has appointed a committee to draft a set of ethical rules for the purpose of discrediting such judicial methods.

Jail sentences, and reasonable certainty of arrest and conviction, seem to be the only effective remedies for reckless driving on streets or highways.

Besides, these "freak" sentences are beyond the power of any court to enforce.

CONDITION OF FARMING IN NATION IS OF SUPREME IMPORTANCE

Yesterday's San Francisco Examiner carried an editorial which began:

What we are prone to forget is that the basis of all our prosperity is the land. And the most essential workers of the world, those we could least afford to dispense with, are those who till the land. The human race as a whole is, first of all, a race of farmers.

This is sound economics and sound sense. The land is, of course, the basis of all life, and he who tills the land the corner-stone of all industry.

Farming is the true fundamental occupation; the life of a country is dependent upon its agriculture. In the last analysis, a purely agricultural nation is a practical possibility, but not one purely industrial; for without agriculture there would be nothing to manufacture, let alone anything to eat.

Therefore there is nothing of more importance to a nation than the condition of its agriculture and the well being of its farmers.

Of late years this fact has been very generally lost sight of in America. There has been a general movement toward the great industrial centers, leaving, in many sections, farms half manned and even in extreme instances deserted.

The farmer's life is not at best an easy one. It is monotonous to many people, an occupation involving long hours, hard physical work, much petty economy. And on the farm the opportunities for amusement are often severely limited. Consequently, the motion picture hero who leaves the old home for the bright lights is often a real as well as a reel person. The prospect of an eight-hour day, good wages and plenty of movie shows is a very bright one to him or her who has never experienced the reality.

So everything which can fairly be done to keep people on the farms should be done. "Back to the farm" movements have their funny side, but they are healthful signs, showing a tendency to restore an economic balance which has been badly tipped toward industrialism.

And legislators, instead of talking about the "downtrodden farmer" before election and forgetting him afterwards, should remember that man does not live by manufacturing alone, but chiefly by bread and milk and corn and eggs and similar commodities, which no one has yet been able to produce in a factory by synthetic process.

It might be well also for cities proud of their prosperity and strength to take thought occasionally concerning the source of it. Not one of them could exist a week without the farm.

And when it comes to war, the farm again is the backbone of the nation, for an army, according to the old saying "marches on its stomach."

And so does a nation in the hardly less strenuous warfare which is called civilization.

Men must indeed be "first of all a race of farmers," or be no race at all.

From Paris comes a complaint that of ten teachers of French in Milwaukee one was born in France, one in America and all the others in Germany!

Can this have anything to do with Clemenceau's visit to the United States?

THE BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Spends An Uncomfortable Night

By THORNTON W. BURGESS
(Copyright, 1922, by T. W. Burgess)

Peter Rabbit had spent as uncomfortable a night as he could remember. Yes, sir, he had spent a very uncomfortable night. It was not that that hole under an old stump in the Green Forest near the new pond of Paddy the Beaver was a bad place. It wasn't. It was plenty big enough to be quite comfortable. It was Peter's feelings that made him uncomfortable. That was it. The first screech Yowler the Bob Cat had given when he started after Peter had frightened Peter so that he almost fell heels over head. It was a frightful sound for any one to hear. Then when Yowler had screeched again at the very entrance to that hole and Peter had heard Yowler's sharp claws tear up the earth in rage it had seemed to him that his heart would thump its way right through his sides. He knew that he was safe from Yowler so long as he remained in that hole, but even that knowledge didn't make those screeches any less frightful.

Peter Would Shiver At The Thought Of What Might Have Happened To Him

Peter would shiver at the thought of what might have happened to him. Then he would chuckle at the thought of how he had saved Paddy the Beaver from Yowler. Then he would shiver again. So for a long time he would shiver, then chuckle, then shiver, then chuckle. It was dreadful to have such mixed feelings.

Yowler screeched only a couple of times at that hole and it was only for a moment or two that he tore up the ground. After that all was still. Then Peter began to worry. Of course, he didn't know whether or not Yowler was still there. In some ways it would have been easier to have known that Yowler was there. It often is easier to know of danger than to be uncertain of it.

"I wish I was at home in the dear Old Briar Patch," whimpered Peter. "I wish I had never thought of coming over to the Green Forest. No, I don't, either. No, sir, I don't. I'm glad I came over. If I hadn't there would have been no one to warn Paddy the Beaver, so I'm glad I came. But, oh dear, I do wish I was back in the dear Old Briar Patch right now! I would start this minute, if I dared to."

But he didn't dare to. You see, he didn't know where Yowler was. Yowler might be close at hand, watching for him to come out. That is what was worrying Peter. He knew that Yowler had a great deal of patience, and he had no way of knowing how long Yowler might watch that hole. He had no way of knowing when it would be safe for him to start for home. Several times during the night he crept almost up to the entrance hole, with his mind fully made up to start. Then fear sent him back again and he would shiver again at the thought of Yowler's great claws and teeth and his fierce yellow eyes. Do you wonder that he spent an uncomfortable night?

The next story: "How Peter Knew That the Way Was Clear."

RETURNING THE COMPLIMENT

Among many amusing stories that Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson tells is one concerning two neighbors, one of them, a retired army officer, bred bull terriers, the other, a famous novelist, specialized in Persian pussies; and there was as little love lost between the soldier and the author as there was between their pets. Presently the soldier died, and the novelist, an essentially kind-hearted man, attended the funeral. The presiding parson, rather foolishly, went up to him and said: "I cannot but express my surprise at your being here."

"And why the dickens shouldn't I come to the old boy's funeral!" the other snapped back. "He would have been precious glad to come to mine."

No. 42—How Toys Originated

Toys arrived in the world with the first children, for since the earliest and arrow for boys, a doll or some with, and as these were always in imitation of the implements used by the people in their various occupations, a history of toys is merely a record of the development of man, in miniature.

From the earliest times girls have played with dolls, but the earliest dolls were called "children's babies." The origin of the word "doll" is not quite clear, but is generally accepted as being an abbreviation of the name Dorothy. Dolls have always been in the shape of human figures and specimens of those played with by children of ancient Egypt, Asia Minor, Greece and Rome are in existence. Some of these old dolls have movable arms and legs and some of those of the Greeks and Romans are jointed with strings for moving them.

All inventions of the old days, as to-day, were soon reflected in toy miniatures. When people were at war boys played with the bow and arrow, or the sling, and were thus taught that it was man's duty to learn to protect the family. Girls' toys were forerunners of the future woman's place in the home. In some countries it was the custom to send gifts to houses where babies had been born during the year. A bow and arrow for bys, a doll or some other toy for girls. In the game of battledore and shuttlecock, which originated in Japan, a paddle called the "battledore" is used. This paddle is identical in shape with the paddles used by the women of Japan when washing clothes.

The earliest mechanical toys were invented in the fifteenth century—being as interesting to all as the mechanical marvels of our own holiday season.

AND CHARITY

(From the Los Angeles Times)

A story illustrative of the wit of Prof. Alfred Noyes, the Anglo-American poet, is going the rounds of London, where he is now enjoying a holiday.

Professor Noyes, not long since, gave a volume of his poetry to a Princeton student, a promising sophomore, inscribing on the fly leaf:

"To Thomas Dash, with the author's hope and faith."

A week or so later in a second-hand shop, Professor Noyes stumbled on Dash's presentation copy. He bought it in with a grim smile and returned it to the sophomore with a second inscription:

"This volume, picked up second-hand yesterday, is re-presented to Thomas Dash, with renewed assurance of the author's hope and faith."

Merely Some Private Thinks By C. K.

IN A recent speech by Lloyd George, he said:

> I don't know the exact figures of our debt to America; I am told it is a thousand millions at the present moment. It is nothing to the debt America owes us. I should like to write the balance-sheet—debit, $5,000,000,000; credit, John Wesley and George Whitefield.
> I am not talking about Shakespeare, Burns and Milton, who are all in the account, and Roger Williams and the Pilgrim Fathers.
> Oh! I could run up a bill against America which would bankrupt even that rich country!

If the United States owes so much to England for John Wesley and George Whitefield and the others, what does she not owe to France for Bossuet, Fenelon and Massillon, for Corneille and Racine and Victor Hugo, et als?

What does she not owe to Italy for Savonarola and Dante, and others?

What to Germany for Luther, and Goethe and Schiller and their kin of the brain?

America owes every country on the face of the earth a great debt of gratitude along this line.

For instance, she is indebted to China for Confucius, to India for Buddha, to Russia for Tolstoi.

Yes, she is indebted to little Palestine for Jesus Christ.

And, looking at the other side of the shield, the entire world is indebted to the United States for Washington, and Lincoln, and Benjamin Franklin, and Robert Fulton, and Eli Whitney, and Thomas Edison, and a roomful of others.

Yet, looking at it from another angle it might be more proper to say no country is in the debt of any other country for any of these men; that they all belonged and belong to the whole world; that the world gives to the world what is its own.

Lloyd George makes a mistake when he says America is indebted to England for the Pilgrim Fathers.

Her debt on that account is due to Holland.

The Pilgrim Fathers did not carry English ideas and English principles to these shores. They imbibed in Holland the faith political they were not permitted to hold in England, nor to transplant there from Holland; so they brought it across the Atlantic.

And the seed was sown in America, not because of England, but in spite of her.

* * *

In a speech before the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce the other day, Herbert Hoover said:

> Europe is lagging behind, and the principal cause of the slowness of economic recovery is the fact that she is still an armed camp.
> More than 3,700,000 men are taken from active participation in industry and productive effort, to form standing armies; millions more are in reserve.

And yet we are told—not only by Europeans, but even by "Americans"—that we are not doing our duty to the world or to ourselves when we do not become part and parcel of that international pandemonium!

HOW THE BULLDOG BOT HIS JAW

The bulldog's jaw is a delicate subject—if investigated without the co-operation of the dog. But having obtained formal introduction you may become quite chummy and easily examine this natural wonder, for a bull's evil disposition is chiefly in his reputation and his looks.

You will notice that the lower jaw protrudes considerably beyond the upper; not merely the fleshy part of the lips, but the bone itself is set forward as much as an inch or even more, making an elongated vise, well adapted for hanging on to trouser seats and the like.

The bulldog's blue blood antedates the War of the Roses and extends back into the mists of the Thirteenth Century. He is obviously an artificial product of the animal breeder, as are our horses, sheep, cows and chickens, and he was apparently cultivated for animal baiting—hence the name "bulldog"—a dog for baiting bulls.

For that sport a dog was required with a mighty grip and indefatigable persistance, ferocious courage and considerable weight.

The breeders did not break two dogs' jaws, stretch them and then find the dogs' children had longer jaws than most of their kind.

A start was made by breeding together the great English mastiff with the large pugdog from Southeastern Asia. This union was probably at first merely an accident, but the progeny were noticeable for large dogs with somewhat longer and heavier underjaws than usual.

Among these hybrid dogs some had longer underjaws than others. By breeding together the dogs with the longest jaws, then selecting from their litters those with still longer jaws and so on, the bulldog's facial characteristics were finally perfected.

Different breeds of animals, according to Darwin, are produced by taking advantage of the fact that all the progeny of a given union are not exactly alike—some children are larger, some smaller, some shorter, some taller, etc.—and that these slight differences, present at birth, may in turn be handed on to children's children. If two animals with the same variation are selected and mated, in some cases the majority of their descendants will show the variation even more markedly.

Thus, man's accumulative selection explains the presence of that bow legged man-of-war which now ornaments the annual dog show.

EXPLAINING IT

Stevenson considered himself the last word in after-dinner speakers and was never tired of telling his friends of his many triumphs.

"Only the other day," he remarked to a long-suffering acquaintance, "I was the third speaker at a banquet. The first speaker got up and after his speech was liked; the second met with the same fate. I confess I was distressed, but I worked up my courage and spoke. My talk was so good that when I had finished the audience began hissing the first two speakers all over again."

IN THE WRONG PEW

(From Porterville Recorder)

Criticism of the grand old French Tiger, Clemenceau, continues, and for the most part it is based upon whether he is right or wrong, from a world-wide viewpoint, and the general verdict seems to be that he would place America in a peculiar position for the benefit of France, who desires to further punish an ancient enemy. The biggest mistake, however, made by the Frenchman—and it would be true even if his views were to America's benefit—is that he, a foreigner, has come to the United States with the avowed intention of dictating this nation's foreign policy in a purely external matter. * * * * The Tiger is in the wrong pew, and it requires no stretch of imagination—if you know France, or even its history—to drive home knowledge of the sort of treatment an American would receive from France were he to try in that land the thing which Clemenceau, former French premier, is endeavoring to accomplish here.

A PRODIGIOUS INFANT

(From Bakersfield Californian)

Almost everybody knows that the radio has enjoyed a marvelous increase in usefulness and popularity in this country. But it is doubtful if the full extent of this increase is generally understood. However, a significant passage taken from the forthcoming annual report of Secretary Herbert Hoover of the department of commerce at Washington tells the story in a few words. The secretary states that the sudden increase within a space of seven months in the use of radio for broadcasting of from five to 320 sending stations, and from probably less than 200,000 up to 1,508,000 receiving installations, resulted in such "interference" between different sending stations as to threaten destruction to the usefulness of this very important invention.

This development caused a conference to be called among representatives of the industry, public bodies and government officials, together with independent experts, early in 1922. This conference, after two months of public hearings, study and investigation, unanimously recommended the immediate extension of regulatory powers of the government, and drafted its technical provision for submission to congress.

Those in a position to speak authoritatively say that the radio, as an instrument of commerce and education, is yet in its infancy. At the rate of development indicated by the secretary's report, it promises to be one of the lustiest infants modern science has ever produced.

JAPANESE CITIZENSHIP

(From Coalinga Daily Record)

There was never any good reason to suppose that the tenacious Japanese who sued for American citizenship and fought his way through the supreme court would be admitted, thereby making a legal precedent for all his race. Our law and practice have long restricted citizenship to the white and black races, and the inclusion of the latter might be called a historic accident. The intention of the fathers was, and yet is, to keep this a "white man's country," and the yellow man is not white. * * *

The yellow race may be as good as the white race, or better. That is not the question. The yellow and white races do not mix very well, and that makes trouble when they come together. America has a high standard of living and Asia a low standard; America has few people to Asia's many; America fears to be overwhelmed numerically and have its type of civilization changed and its life made harder if any considerable influx of Asiatics is permitted.

To protect what she has is America's unquestionable right, just as it is Asia's right to assert and preserve her own institutions and form of life.

KILLED BY AUTOS

(From Reedley Exponent)

Figures furnished in connection with "Safety Week" in Washington show that in 1906, with 2,000 automobiles in the country, there were 375 automobile fatalities; in 1910, with 400,000 automobiles, 1,681 deaths; 1917, with 4,941,000 automobiles, 7,560 deaths; 1919, with 7,500,000 automobiles, 9,000 deaths; 1920, with 9,100,000 automobiles, 10,500 deaths, and in 1921, with 10,500,000 automobiles, 12,000 deaths.

"By this you will see," says Boobar, who is identified with the movement, "that deaths are increasing at the rate of one-half the percentage of the increase of automobiles. It requires only cold calculation to show that if a new education is not undertaken, the population will face a greater and greater death menace as vehicle traffic increases."

Boobar also says that since 1906 deaths in industries, factories, etc., have decreased 29 per cent. Deaths from automobile accidents have increased in the same time 3,000 per cent.

The parallel is obvious, according to Boobar, that the same safety first principles which captains of industry have inaugurated should be, but are not, applied to the every day life of the general population.

The Broken Charm

By EARL STRACHAN

But the Goblin king in fiercest pride,
Stepped forth from his ranks and in anger cried:
"You have come to fight for the Irish miss,
Who is weeping now for her lover's kiss.
So I stand ready for single fight
With Fairy king or Fairy knight;
And if you conquer I'll break the charm
And free the maid from Goblin harm."

Then O'Hara answered, "Your battle gauge,
I now accept, and will combat wage.
I'm ready to battle for love and right
And go forth alone against your might."
Then with right arm raised on high
He dashed at the Goblin through the sky.
While from his eyes flew darts of flame
And from his hand bright lightning came.

And the sky grew dark over hill and moor
And the whole earth shook with the thunder roar;
While the Goblin struggled in combat vain,
The battle fierce for his host to gain.
But O'Hara's bolts of lightning bright
Soon overcame the Goblin might.
And sudden—while all the Fairies cheered—
The Goblin chieftain disappeared.

"We have won!" cried the king, "and the lassie fair,
Life and love with her knight shall share.
And Goblin chief from this great hour
Must bow his head to Fairy power.
Now off we'll go to the grassy dell,
Where the maid and her sweetheart in love shall dwell.
And we'll tell her how O'Hara brave
Freed both from the charms of the Goblin knave."

And so to-day on the fields of green
The Irish lass and her knight are seen;
And they bless O'Hara for his brave fight
Which freed them both from the Goblin's might.
And at night when they lay down to rest
From their homes afar in the golden west,
The Fairies come and guard them well
From Goblins' charms and Goblins' spell.
